Milk Strike Effects Felt in Ulster County

Three New Polio Cases Diagnosed

In Phoenicia-Woodstock Area; No Need to Close Schools, Report

Three new cases of polio have been diagnosed within Ulster county during the past week, it was reported today by the county Department of Health.

One of the patients is a boy, two years old, who is hospitalized at the Benedictine Hospital, Dr. Dudley W. Hargrave, county health commissioner, said. The others are girls, one six and the other seven, both of whom suffered mild cases.

It was learned from other sources and confirmed by the health authorities that the three new cases and two that were previously reported occurred in the Phoenicia-Woodstock area.

'Sufficiently Isolated'

The cases appeared to be sufficiently isolated, Dr. Hargrave said, and separated in period of time to minimize the possibility of closing two schools—the Woodstock Elementary School and the Onteora Central School, health department and school authorities indicated.

Various precautionary steps have been taken, it was learned, including the administration of gamma globulin inoculations to close contacts and family members.

Art Teacher, Students Ill

It was learned, and was not denied by the health department, that an art teacher and two students at the Onteora School have been treated for polio, and that one school child and the two-year-old pre-school youngster from Woodstock were among the recent polio cases. This appears to be common knowledge in the areas concerned.

Spokesmen at both schools today said there had been no official action taken relative to closing the schools. At Woodstock Elementary School it was reported that all physical training has been canceled and children have been advised to stay home and consult their physician if they contract a bad cold.

Have Closing Authority

Local school health officers have the authority to close the schools if they feel it necessary, but health authorities generally and the State Health Department has repeatedly in the past stressed the fact that the closing of schools is not necessary in all cases of mild outbreaks of contagious diseases.

The Health Department's stand as explained by Dr. Hargrave, is that the mere closing of school accomplishes nothing unless each child is kept at home and all other places of congregation are closed. Casual contacts in school are considered less dangerous than the intimate contacts of family groups and play groups.

The three new cases listed today by the health department bring Ulster county's total number of resident cases reported since Jan. 1 to nine. There have been five cases reported in the county involving non-residents.

Distributors Take Move to Send Product to Processing Plants

The effects of a strike of New York metropolitan area milk plant workers and milkmen were felt quickly by Ulster county dairy producers and distributors, who stand to lose a considerable percentage of their income if the strike is prolonged.

Distributors in the county this morning were planning to take necessary steps to salvage as large a portion of their business as possible by sending milk to processing plants or to other markets.

The dairy industry vies with fruit as Ulster county's number one farm industry and it grosses more than $3,500,000 annually.

Surplus of milk built up quickly this morning in distributing points geared to send daily shipments of the highly perishable product into New York.

Stands to Lose

Harry Snyder of the Shawangunk Dairies at Kyserike, which handles from 30 to 40,000 quarts of milk daily, said this morning that his plant, in common with "every plant north of New York" stands to lose a "tremendous volume" unless a quick settlement is effected.

Approximately 80 per cent of the milk handled by Shawangunk Dairies is ordinarily destined for the New York market, with the remainder being distributed locally. Milk is purchased almost entirely from Ulster county dairymen, with a small amount being drawn from Sullivan county.

The firm is taking steps to separate the cream for storage, but the skim milk will become a loss if the strike continues, Snyder said.

Hope for Settlement

Soviets Begin Big Manhunt, Report, For West Partisans

West Berlin Newspapers Say 28 Police Killed, 16 Anti-Reds in Battles

Berlin, Oct. 26 (AP)—West Berlin newspapers say police of the Soviet east zone have launched a new big manhunt for fighters of the anti-Communist underground and have clashed with them in several gun battles.

An estimated 28 police have been killed or wounded and 16 partisans arrested in the past two weeks as a result of the sweep, centering in wooded areas southeast of here, according to the reports.

West Berlin's Socialist-edited newspaper Telegraf said yesterday the latest outbreaks reportedly took place in the Cottbus district, near Poland. Der Tag, another West Berlin daily, said 2,500 police converged on the area, 60 miles southeast of here, a week ago.

The papers labeled their reports as unconfirmed.

Western intelligence sources said such clashes as have been officially confirmed "do not indicate that East Germany is on the verge of another June 17 revolt."

Cordon Is Formed

Der Tag reported that, as the East German police fanned through the countryside southeast of Berlin, 8,000 police and Soviet troops formed a cordon around the city to block possible escape routes into the allied sectors.

Police, using loudspeaker trucks, were reported to have called on the people of Falkensee, just outside the British sector, to help ferret out "armed murder bands" hidden in nearby woods.

Rumors were that the underground fighters included partisan gangs which had slipped out of Poland and Czechoslovakia and were making their way through the East Zone to the safety of political asylum in West Berlin.

The western intelligence sources said possibly 20 or 30 anti-Red Poles and Czechs had infiltrated East Germany, but it was likely they were in very small groups or traveling alone. Almost certainly such escapees would be armed.

Some Are in Hiding

Some East German workers who led last summer's revolt are known, also, to be in hiding.

The East German government has threatened severe punishment for anyone helping "Fascist band-

FBI Begins Distribution Of Ransom Cash Serials

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—The FBI today began nationwide distribution of the serial numbers of the unrecovered portion of the Greenlease kidnaping ransom money.

A total of $600,000 was paid to the kidnapers of little Bobby Greenlease, 6-year-old son of a wealthy Kansas City, Mo., automobile dealer.

Bobby, however, had been killed before the ransom was paid. His body was found in a shallow grave at St. Joseph, Mo.

When Carl Austin Hall, confessed kidnaper and killer of the child, was arrested in St. Louis, only $296,280 was recovered.

The list being distributed by the FBI today contains the serial numbers of the currency making up the remainder of $303,720.

All of the money is in $10 and $20 bills.

The lists are being furnished to banks and other financial institutions, law enforcement agencies and numerous other business concerns.

Altogether, $400,000 of the money was in $20 bills, the remainder in $10 notes.

The long list includes the numbers of bills from all of the 12 federal reserve districts, as specified by the kidnapers, Hall and his woman accomplice, Bonnie Brown Heady.

On the list being circularized the serial numbers are arranged alphabetically by letter at the beginning of the number and then numerically.

"Mr. Hoover (director J. Edgar Hoover) asked that anyone who has information concerning the money immediately communicate by telephone, collect, with the nearest office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation," the FBI said.

"Location and telephone number of the nearest field office of the FBI are listed on Page 1 of all telephone directories."

Red Stand New Threat For Talks

Communists Now Call for Admission of Neutral Nations; Is Opposed by U. S.

Panmunjom, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Communists today raised an immediate threat to the success of preliminary Korean peace talks at their opening session by demanding the admission of neutral nations to the big talks—a proposal opposed by the United States.

Despite the ominous first day of the preliminary talks, Arthur Dean, the U. S. ambassador representing the UN, expressed hope an agreement could be hammered out and "a political conference will be held."

Dean and the Communists ran together head on over an agenda for the preliminary talks. The Reds insisted on discussing composition of the political conference as the first item on the agenda for this meeting.

Dean has no authority to negotiate the makeup of the political conference. He can discuss only administrative matters, time and place.

Meet Again Tuesday

The preliminary talks lasted one hour and 15 minutes. The negotiators meet again tomorrow.

Dean represented the United Nations. The Reds were represented by Huang Hua, counsellor of the Chinese Communist Foreign Affairs Ministry, and Ki Sok Bok who holds the same position in North Korea.

Ki works for North Korean Foreign Minister Nam Il, who represented the Reds in the armistice negotiations.

The North Korean hastily opened the meeting with a prepared statement demanding the admission of neutrals—particulatrly Asian neutrals—to the political conference. The Chinese representative immediately echoed the arguments.

Dean merely noted the Red statements and in answer proposed that the conference get started Nov. 23. He proposed an agenda listing time and place as the first order of business in the preliminary talks.

Rules Out Red Site

He told the Reds that the United States would like to see the peace conference held at Honolulu, San Francisco or Geneva.

He said he wouldn't insist on any one of those cities but he ruled out a meeting in Communist territory.

The United Nations agenda left the door open for later discussion of who should attend the conference talks. It listed "other matters" as the last item for discussion.

Newsmen were allowed to watch much of the first session and the impression was voiced that although the North Koreans were doing most of the talking, the Chinese Communists were again running the show, as they did in the long armistice discussions at Panmunjom.

The meeting was reminiscent of the long drawn out truce discussions. The North Korean representative even arrived in the black limousine once used by Nam Il.

Comments on Meeting

After the meeting Dean said he would not agree "to composition being the first item discussed."

He told newsmen he was not surprised that the Reds brought the matter up immediately. He said of the meeting in general:

"Most of the discussion was the usual broken record of Communist harangue we are accustomed to listen to for hours on end in the United Nations."

"Our position is precisely what it was before we started," he said.

Sees Quick Mobilization

Los Angeles, Oct. 26 (AP)—Industry in the United States could be mobilized for war almost overnight in the event of national emergency, says Assistant Defense Secretary Charles S. Thomas. He told a press conference yesterday, "we could move overnight in the allocating of different assignments to industry instead of mulling over it for six months."

New York, Oct. 26 (AP) — Atty. Gen. Nathaniel L. Goldstein says his office is ready for a court hearing in the Joseph S. Fay parole plea case as soon as the proceedings are started "in the proper way."

"We want a speedy determination," Goldstein says, adding that he hopes supporters of Robert F. Wagner, Jr., Democratic nominee for mayor, "will not try to delay until after election."

Father Steltz Gets Credit for Talking Boy From Plunge

THE REV. JOHN STELTZ

A 33-year-old priest who was born and reared in Kingston is credited with saving the life of a 12-year-old boy who threatened for 45 minutes yesterday to leap from a skylight on the roof of a five-story building at 949 Fox street, the Bronx.

According to the Associated Press, the Rev. John Steltz of St. Athanasius Roman Catholic Church, Fox and Barette streets, the Bronx, spoke to the boy for 30 minutes through a Spanish-speaking patrolman, finally persuading him to come down.

Argued With Mother

The boy, Victor Garcia of 985 Fox street, the Bronx, had gone to his skylight perch after an argument with his mother, Mrs. Sara Rios Romero, in which, police said, he threatened her with a knife. From the rooftop, police said, the boy threw stones into the street.

Fearing the boy would jump from the skylight which overlooks the areaway between two buildings, firemen spread a net below as several hundred spectators gathered. Policemen went to the roof and gathered around the skylight, trying to persuade the boy to come down.

Thirty policemen, fire department and police emergency equipment, several radio cars and an ambulance stood by.

The boy was taken in an ambulance, accompanied by the Rev. Father Steltz and Mrs. Romero, to Lincoln Hospital and then to Bellevue.

Father Employed in City

The young priest's father, John Steltz, is employed at N. Stock's Sons, Inc., 661 Broadway.

Steltz told The Freeman that his son was born and reared in Kingston, attended St. Peter's School and, at the age of 13, enrolled in the Cathedral College in New York where he studied for six years. Upon graduation he studied at St. Joseph's Seminary,

14 Persons Killed In State Accidents During Weekend

Hudson Falls Youth Dies in Hospital of Burns; Was Putting Gas in His Car

Albany, Oct. 26 (AP)—Twelve highway fatalities, including a mother and her two children, swelled New York state's weekend accident toll to 14.

Mrs. Rose Ann Baehr, 23, of Wrights Corners near Lockport, and her children, Jerry, 3½, and Roger, 5 weeks, were killed yesterday in a two-car collision at an intersection north of Gasport.

Her husband, Clarence Otto, 27, was reported in critical condition.

The driver of the other car, Paul Platt, 17, of Appleton, suffered cuts and bruises. Also injured were Caroline Thiel, 14, and Patricia Meland, 15, both of Barker.

Daniel Martin, 18, of Hudson Falls, died in a Glens Falls hospital yesterday of burns suffered Saturday when gasoline caught fire as he filled the tank of an automobile.

The cause of the fire was not known.

Killed by Gun

At Lyons Saturday, Mrs. Rose Muto, 50, was killed when a rifle was discharged accidentally in her home. Robert W. Burns, Wayne county sheriff's deputy, said her husband, Anthony, and her brother-in-law, Jack Rosen, also of Lyons, were examining a .22 caliber rifle in the kitchen as Mrs. Muto entered the room.

Burns said Muto handed the gun to Rosen and was explaining

Hospital Trustees Will Vote Tonight On $250,000 Drive

Plans for immediate inauguration of a campaign to raise an additional $250,000 for the building fund at Kingston Hospital, will be presented to the board of trustees for adoption at the regular board's monthly meeting tonight.

According to a hospital release, the $250,000 is needed to complete designs which have been developed by Harry S. Halverson, local architect, following consultation with the officers and building committee of the board.

The release pointed out that the costs based on original plans were so far in excess of expected figures that revisions were unavoidably necessary.

The hospital's building committee has announced that the completion of the project on the basis of present plans will give the community a first grade institution with all modern equipment and installations.

Inn Owner Fires Shots At Mikulka

Richard Mikulka Placed Under Hospital Guard —His Wounds Are Superficial

Richard Mikulka, 25, of RD 1, Rhinebeck, received wounds which are described as superficial when he was struck in the left chest by shots fired from a 12-gauge shotgun while he was allegedly attempting to break into the Tropical Inn at Port Ewen about 4:45 a. m. Sunday, according to the report given to Under Sheriff Clayton W. Vredenburg and County Investigator Arthur Brown.

The shot was fired by John Pulvirenti, proprietor of the inn when Mikulka returned a second time to the inn after deputies had first been summoned to the place at 3:30 a. m.

Warrant Is Issued

A warrant has been issued charging Mikulka with attempted burglary and when discharged from the Kingston Hospital, where he was treated, he will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Frances E. Palen who issued the warrant. It is expected Mikulka will be released later today.

Mikulka came to Kingston, according to his story, Saturday to do some shopping. He missed the last ferry and then apparently wandered over to Tropical Inn. He arrived there after the place was closed and while the proprietor was engaged in counting the day's receipts which were considerable.

At 3:30 a. m. the sheriff's office was notified by Pulvirenti that someone was attempting to break into the place. Mikulka had previously been notified the place was closed for the day.

Two Sent to Scene

Deputies Thomas Mayone and William Snyder were sent to the scene but when they approached the place the person who had created the commotion disappeared in the brush back of the inn. After searching for some time the deputies left.

At 4:45 a. m. Mrs. Pulvirenti again notified the sheriff's office that a man was kicking at the door and attempting to break in. Meanwhile the proprietor had removed the cash from the register and had been counting it at the bar. Since the earlier disturbance he also had taken his automatic shot gun and loaded it as a precaution.

Taken To Hospital

When the deputies arrived on their second trip they found Mikulka hanging on the door with a wound in his left side just over the heart. He was taken to the Kingston Hospital and treated for superficial wounds by the resident physician.

Under Sheriff Vredenburg and County Investigator Brown were summoned and District Attorney Howard C. St. John was also notified of the shooting.

The gun and empty shell were recovered by Brown who also took pictures at the scene.

Employed in Poughkeepsie

Mikulka was a stranger to the proprietor of the Inn, but was identified as the man who had been at the place just after closing hours. He is employed in Poughkeepsie as a diesel mechanic.

According to the story told by Mikulka he came to Kingston Saturday to do some shopping and became confused and missed the last ferry. He told officials that he did not know where he had gone but believed he was at a friend's place when he first went to the Inn about 3 a. m. He said he did not recall clearly what happened later.

The charge from the gun was fired toward the door, a distance of about 30 feet, sheriff's officers said and most of the number six pellets struck the door rail and window frame, bouncing off and striking Mikulka in the chest over the heart. Some of the pellets were found in his shirt pocket where they had failed to pierce the shirt. Some of the pellets entered his chest and left arm but the wounds were described as superficial.

Mikulka was placed under guard at the hospital and will be arraigned as soon as his physical condition permits. The attending physician is expected to permit his removal from the hospital later today at which time Mikulka will be arraigned on the attempted burglary charge.

Assemblyman Says He Seeks to End Kingston Area Priority

Assemblyman Robert W. Pomeroy, Dutchess county, seeks legislation to repeal a law giving the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge preference over the proposed Beacon-Newburgh span, the Sunday Poughkeepsie New Yorker said yesterday.

"I have always felt and still feel," Pomeroy said, "that the Beacon-Newburgh bridge is a greater necessity than the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge. Why then, does the construction of it have to await the completion of the Kingston bridge?"

The assemblyman said it was his understanding that the law providing that the Kingston-Rhinecliff span must be built before the other is started, was enacted on the instance of Senator Arthur H. Wicks.

Preliminary Work Begun

Preliminary work is already under way on the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge. The western approach is being cleared and rough graded, and it was recently indicated that plans for similar work on the eastern approach are completed and ready for final approval.

James F. Loughran, of this city, chairman of the New York State Bridge Authority, who is recovering at Kingston Hospital after a recent operation, was not available for comment today. He has been at the hospital for about three weeks, was reported as "improving" today, and expects to return home this week.

The Poughkeepsie newspaper noted that Governor Dewey last April 16 signed a bill which authorized construction of the Beacon-Newburgh bill, and then, in his memorandum said that the "provision for an additional crossing of the Hudson river at this point is represented as being of great economic value to the communities of both sides of the river."

Bonds Authorized

The article noted that Senator Wicks was the sponsor in the senate of all bills providing for construction of the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge and that the legislature has authorized bonds up to $30,000,000 on the project.

Actual construction cost of the bridge is estimated at upwards of $18,000,000.

Assemblyman Pomeroy said a state public works department survey published in 1952 showed that traffic over a bridge at Newburgh would be at least double in volume as one at Kingston.

NAACP Speaker Says Negro Treament Is Vital Problem

Delegates to the New York State Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in session in Kingston during the weekend heard the association's national labor representative term the treatment of the Negro a problem of "greater significance today than in ay period since the end of reconstruction days."

Highlights of the three-day convention included the talk by Herbert Hill, NAACP national labor representative, at the banquet Saturday evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel, and an address Sunday afternoon by Rev. William Lloyd Imes, director of social and adult education of the New York State Council of Churches.

Approximately 60 delegates from all parts of the state attended the conference, first state meeting of the NAACP ever to be held in Kingston. The Ulster county branch, of which Everette Hodge is president, was host. The conference got under way Friday with an executive meeting at the hotel, followed by a social hour at Hodge's home at 21 Franklin street.

Business sessions Saturday morning at the Franklin Street AME Zion Church were followed by a luncheon and an afternoon session featuring a workshop with emphasis on youth. The banquet was held Saturday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel, and Sunday afternoon's address by Rev. Mr. Imes was given at the Franklin Street Church.

Mrs. Effie A. Gordon of Rye, state president presided.

At Saturday's banquet, Herbert Hill, national labor representative for the NAACP, severly criticized the State Commission Against Discrimination for what he termed its "weak and ineffective

Dean represented the United Nations. The Reds were represented by Huang Hua, counsellor of the Chinese Communist Foreign Affairs Ministry, and Ki Sok Bok who holds the same position in North Korea.

Ki works for North Korean Foreign Minister Nam Il, who represented the Reds in the armistice negotiations.

The North Korean hastily opened the meeting with a prepared statement demanding the admission of neutrals—particulatrly Asian neutrals—to the political conference. The Chinese representative immediately echoed the arguments.

Dean merely noted the Red statements and in answer proposed that the conference get started Nov. 23. He proposed an agenda listing time and place as the first order of business in the preliminary talks.

Rules Out Red Site

He told the Reds that the United States would like to see the peace conference held at Honolulu, San Francisco or Geneva.

He said he wouldn't insist on any one of those cities but he ruled out a meeting in Communist territory.

The United Nations agenda left the door open for later discussion of who should attend the conference talks. It listed "other matters" as the last item for discussion.

Newsmen were allowed to watch much of the first session and the impression was voiced that although the North Koreans were doing most of the talking, the Chinese Communists were again running the show, as they did in the long armistice discussions at Panmunjom.

The meeting was reminiscent of the long drawn out truce discussions. The North Korean representative even arrived in the black limousine once used by Nam Il.

Comments on Meeting

After the meeting Dean said he would not agree "to composition being the first item discussed."

He told newsmen he was not surprised that the Reds brought the matter up immediately. He said of the meeting in general:

"Most of the discussion was the usual broken record of Communist harangue we are accustomed to listen to for hours on end in the United Nations."

"Our position is precisely what it was before we started," he said.

THE REV. JOHN STELTZ

A 33-year-old priest who was born and reared in Kingston is credited with saving the life of a 12-year-old boy who threatened for 45 minutes yesterday to leap from a skylight on the roof of a five-story building at 949 Fox street, the Bronx.

According to the Associated Press, the Rev. John Steltz of St. Athanasius Roman Catholic Church, Fox and Barette streets, the Bronx, spoke to the boy for 30 minutes through a Spanish-speaking patrolman, finally persuading him to come down.

Argued With Mother

The boy, Victor Garcia of 985 Fox street, the Bronx, had gone to his skylight perch after an argument with his mother, Mrs. Sara Rios Romero, in which, police said, he threatened her with a knife. From the rooftop, police said, the boy threw stones into the street.

Fearing the boy would jump from the skylight which overlooks the areaway between two buildings, firemen spread a net below as several hundred spectators gathered. Policemen went to the roof and gathered around the skylight, trying to persuade the boy to come down.

Thirty policemen, fire department and police emergency equipment, several radio cars and an ambulance stood by.

The boy was taken in an ambulance, accompanied by the Rev. Father Steltz and Mrs. Romero, to Lincoln Hospital and then to Bellevue.

Father Employed in City

The young priest's father, John Steltz, is employed at N. Stock's Sons, Inc., 661 Broadway.

Steltz told The Freeman that his son was born and reared in Kingston, attended St. Peter's School and, at the age of 13, enrolled in the Cathedral College in New York where he studied for six years. Upon graduation he studied at St. Joseph's Seminary,

Hospital Trustees Will Vote Tonight On $250,000 Drive

Plans for immediate inauguration of a campaign to raise an additional $250,000 for the building fund at Kingston Hospital, will be presented to the board of trustees for adoption at the regular board's monthly meeting tonight.

According to a hospital release, the $250,000 is needed to complete designs which have been developed by Harry S. Halverson, local architect, following consultation with the officers and building committee of the board.

The release pointed out that the costs based on original plans were so far in excess of expected figures that revisions were unavoidably necessary.

The hospital's building committee has announced that the completion of the project on the basis of present plans will give the community a first grade institution with all modern equipment and installations.

Assemblyman Says He Seeks to End Kingston Area Priority

Assemblyman Robert W. Pomeroy, Dutchess county, seeks legislation to repeal a law giving the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge preference over the proposed Beacon-Newburgh span, the Sunday Poughkeepsie New Yorker said yesterday.

"I have always felt and still feel," Pomeroy said, "that the Beacon-Newburgh bridge is a greater necessity than the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge. Why then, does the construction of it have to await the completion of the Kingston bridge?"

The assemblyman said it was his understanding that the law providing that the Kingston-Rhinecliff span must be built before the other is started, was enacted on the instance of Senator Arthur H. Wicks.

Preliminary Work Begun

Preliminary work is already under way on the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge. The western approach is being cleared and rough graded, and it was recently indicated that plans for similar work on the eastern approach are completed and ready for final approval.

James F. Loughran, of this city, chairman of the New York State Bridge Authority, who is recovering at Kingston Hospital after a recent operation, was not available for comment today. He has been at the hospital for about three weeks, was reported as "improving" today, and expects to return home this week.

The Poughkeepsie newspaper noted that Governor Dewey last April 16 signed a bill which authorized construction of the Beacon-Newburgh bill, and then, in his memorandum said that the "provision for an additional crossing of the Hudson river at this point is represented as being of great economic value to the communities of both sides of the river."

Bonds Authorized

The article noted that Senator Wicks was the sponsor in the senate of all bills providing for construction of the Kingston-Rhinecliff bridge and that the legislature has authorized bonds up to $30,000,000 on the project.

Actual construction cost of the bridge is estimated at upwards of $18,000,000.

Assemblyman Pomeroy said a state public works department survey published in 1952 showed that traffic over a bridge at Newburgh would be at least double in volume as one at Kingston.

NAACP Speaker Says Negro Treament Is Vital Problem

Delegates to the New York State Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in session in Kingston during the weekend heard the association's national labor representative term the treatment of the Negro a problem of "greater significance today than in ay period since the end of reconstruction days."

Highlights of the three-day convention included the talk by Herbert Hill, NAACP national labor representative, at the banquet Saturday evening at the Governor Clinton Hotel, and an address Sunday afternoon by Rev. William Lloyd Imes, director of social and adult education of the New York State Council of Churches.

Approximately 60 delegates from all parts of the state attended the conference, first state meeting of the NAACP ever to be held in Kingston. The Ulster county branch, of which Everette Hodge is president, was host. The conference got under way Friday with an executive meeting at the hotel, followed by a social hour at Hodge's home at 21 Franklin street.

Business sessions Saturday morning at the Franklin Street AME Zion Church were followed by a luncheon and an afternoon session featuring a workshop with emphasis on youth. The banquet was held Saturday night at the Governor Clinton Hotel, and Sunday afternoon's address by Rev. Mr. Imes was given at the Franklin Street Church.

Inn Owner Fires Shots At Mikulka

Richard Mikulka Placed Under Hospital Guard —His Wounds Are Superficial

Richard Mikulka, 25, of RD 1, Rhinebeck, received wounds which are described as superficial when he was struck in the left chest by shots fired from a 12-gauge shotgun while he was allegedly attempting to break into the Tropical Inn at Port Ewen about 4:45 a. m. Sunday, according to the report given to Under Sheriff Clayton W. Vredenburg and County Investigator Arthur Brown.

The shot was fired by John Pulvirenti, proprietor of the inn when Mikulka returned a second time to the inn after deputies had first been summoned to the place at 3:30 a. m.

Warrant Is Issued

A warrant has been issued charging Mikulka with attempted burglary and when discharged from the Kingston Hospital, where he was treated, he will be arraigned before Justice of the Peace Frances E. Palen who issued the warrant. It is expected Mikulka will be released later today.

Mikulka came to Kingston, according to his story, Saturday to do some shopping. He missed the last ferry and then apparently wandered over to Tropical Inn. He arrived there after the place was closed and while the proprietor was engaged in counting the day's receipts which were considerable.

At 3:30 a. m. the sheriff's office was notified by Pulvirenti that someone was attempting to break into the place. Mikulka had previously been notified the place was closed for the day.

Two Sent to Scene

Deputies Thomas Mayone and William Snyder were sent to the scene but when they approached the place the person who had created the commotion disappeared in the brush back of the inn. After searching for some time the deputies left.

At 4:45 a. m. Mrs. Pulvirenti again notified the sheriff's office that a man was kicking at the door and attempting to break in. Meanwhile the proprietor had removed the cash from the register and had been counting it at the bar. Since the earlier disturbance he also had taken his automatic shot gun and loaded it as a precaution.

Taken To Hospital

When the deputies arrived on their second trip they found Mikulka hanging on the door with a wound in his left side just over the heart. He was taken to the Kingston Hospital and treated for superficial wounds by the resident physician.

Under Sheriff Vredenburg and County Investigator Brown were summoned and District Attorney Howard C. St. John was also notified of the shooting.

The gun and empty shell were recovered by Brown who also took pictures at the scene.

Employed in Poughkeepsie

Mikulka was a stranger to the proprietor of the Inn, but was identified as the man who had been at the place just after closing hours. He is employed in Poughkeepsie as a diesel mechanic.

According to the story told by Mikulka he came to Kingston Saturday to do some shopping and became confused and missed the last ferry. He told officials that he did not know where he had gone but believed he was at a friend's place when he first went to the Inn about 3 a. m. He said he did not recall clearly what happened later.

The charge from the gun was fired toward the door, a distance of about 30 feet, sheriff's officers said and most of the number six pellets struck the door rail and window frame, bouncing off and striking Mikulka in the chest over the heart. Some of the pellets were found in his shirt pocket where they had failed to pierce the shirt. Some of the pellets entered his chest and left arm but the wounds were described as superficial.

Mikulka was placed under guard at the hospital and will be arraigned as soon as his physical condition permits. The attending physician is expected to permit his removal from the hospital later today at which time Mikulka will be arraigned on the attempted burglary charge.

La Rosa Bides His Time on Outcome Of Godfrey Break

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Singer Julius La Rosa, after his first television appearance since being fired by Arthur Godfrey, says he still does not know whether the events of the past week have been a break.

"Time will tell," added the 24-year-old Brooklynite who for two years had been a "little Godfrey" and last night started a career as a television star in his own right.

He made the change with his parents watching from the audience and a host of teen age fans shouting encouragement on the sidewalks outside the studio.

La Rosa appeared on the Ed Sullivan "Toast of the Town" TV program over CBS. Cheers greeted his rendition of the song, "Eh Cumpari," which he made popular in a recording.

First Since Release

It was the singer's first TV performance since Godfrey a week ago today gave La Rosa his walking papers during a morning broadcast.

Godfrey followed up this action with a news conference at which he accused La Rosa of having lost his humility. Then during a television interview Friday Godfrey said he just wanted to do the young man a favor and allow him to go on to bigger things; if time had not run out on last Monday's program, Godfrey said, he would have given La Rosa a bigger send-off.

Says Violation Done

A television official, who declined to be identified, said last night that the right explanation of the incident was the one originally given by Godfrey. The subject of humility, the official indicated, was brought into the fore by La Rosa's getting himself an outside manager in violation of an agreement with Godfrey.

La Rosa made no direct reference to Godfrey during last night's program. However, the crooner later said he guessed Godfrey's television statement Friday was "his message to me—which I appreciate."

For the events of the past week La Rosa had this two-word summary in boby-sox terminology: "Crazy cute."

Turning to the future, he said that outside of scheduled appearances on Sullivan's program "the only offers I know of are the ones I've read about in the papers."

Minister Raps Godfrey

Barre, Vet., Oct. 26 (AP) — The Rev. Emory S. Bucke, a Methodist minister, says the Ten Commandments appeared to have been rewritten during the past week to read:

"Thou shalt worship thy Lord God-frey, and him only shalt thou serve."

Speaking yesterday at a United Protestant service, Dr. Bucke, of the Methodist Publishing House, Boston, said also:

"The plain fact is that no one in history has been able to bluff humility. Genuine humility does not play the part of a 'stupid stooge,' but is a quality of soul which is there by virtue of deep spiritual achievement."

Dr. Bucke was referring to the discharge of singer Julius La Rosa by Arthur Godfrey for having "lost his humility."

Student Returns Bag

Through the honesty of Jimmy Johnson, 13, of 473 Washington avenue, George Bowen of High Falls had restored to him a handbag, containing a considerable sum of money and other valuable articles. Jimmy, a student at the George Washington School, while near Washington avenue and North Front street Saturday observed a bag fall from a passing car. His first thought was to restore it to its owner and he immediately took it to the sheriff's office where the city police was contacted to ascertain if it had been reported lost. Later through the efforts of the sheriff's office staff it was restored to its owner.

Will Refuse Testimony

St. Louis, Oct. 26 (AP)—Police Lt. Louis Shoulders, credited with breaking the Greenlease kidnaping case, said today he will refuse to testify before a federal grand jury which will meet in Kansas City tomorrow to consider the case. Meanwhile a nationwide distribution of serial numbers of the missing $303,720 in ransom money was begun, with authorities here apparently stalled in their search for the money.

Convict Is Put On List of Top 10

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP) — An escaped convict with a long record of desperate deeds today was put on the FBI's list of "10 most wanted men."

He is Sanford Garrison, 53, known as "the human adding machine," who has worked at many racetracks and with racing information agencies. A rapid calculator, his mental arithmetic is reputedly able to outstrip many machines.

Garrison's criminal file runs back to 1925 and includes holdups, kidnaping, burglary, grand larceny, parole violations and prison breaks.

Sentenced to Life

In 1936 he was convicted of setting fire to a roadhouse in Campbell county, Ky., during a gambling feud. The resulting explosion killed a five-year-old child. Garrison was convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. However, he was subsequently turned over to Alabama authorities who wanted him on an old grand larceny charge.

Frequently in and out of prison he was at Atmore (Ala.) State Prison Farm in August 1952, serving a life sentence for robbery, when he and 10 other convicts made a getaway by stealing prison equipment with which they cut through a cell block wall, forced an iron door and tunneled their way out.

The FBI described Garrison as a desperate criminal.

Late Bulletin

Albany, Oct. 26 (AP)—Justice Harry E. Schirick of State Supreme Court said today he would be "available" tomorrow for a hearing in the Fay parole case.

He talked to a newsman after being informed that State Atty. Gen. Nathaniel L. Goldstein had described his office as ready for a hearing as soon as proceedings were started "in the proper way."

Goldstein referred to a move by supporters of Robert F. Wagner Jr., Democratic candidate for New York city mayor, to force the state parole board to make public the list of visitors to labor racketeer Joseph S. Fay in Sing Sing prison.

Judith Dolan, 14, of Poughkeepsie, suffered injuries of the back, head and right shoulder when two sedans collided on Broadway near St. James street Sunday.

A police report at 10 p. m., said the sedan of Benjamin Murell, 35, of 22 Warren street, Hudson, and the car of William E. Dolan, 43, of 119 North Clinton street, Poughkeepsie, were both headed south on Broadway when they collided.

Woman Is Hurt

Mrs. James P. Loughran, of 51 Trenton street, suffered bruises of the forehead and abrasions of the left knee in another slight mishap on the Rondout creek bridge Sunday.

The police report at 5:05 p. m., said a car driven by James P. Loughran, and the sedan of Fred Corrado, 28, of Compton road, Hyde Park, were both headed north on the bridge during the rain Sunday when they collided. Both drivers reported damage.

A tractor-trailer and a car collided at Broadway and East Chester street at about noon Saturday as both were headed west on Broadway and turning into East Chester street.

Man Says Killing Was Act of Mercy

Linden, N. J., Oct. 26 (AP)—A factory worker told police a story yesterday of how he hit his paralyzed wife with a hammer and then strangled her because "she wanted me to kill her."

John Peyto, 49, showed up at police headquarters to say he killed his 46-year-old wife, Anna, out of mercy.

While Detectives took his statement, police went to the Peyto apartment to check on his story.

There they found his wife lying face up in her blood-spattered bed. Peyto was quoted as saying he beat her with a diaper-wrapped hammer and then strangled her with an electric power cord.

Peyto said he then placed a crucifix on her breast and a string of Rosary beads in her hands.

His wife, he said, had been depressed since she suffered a stroke 10 months ago that left her bedridden.

He said Mrs. Peyto wakened him at 3 a. m. yesterday and asked him, as she had done previously, to kill her. He said he thought it over for about five hours, and then did it.

Peyto was described by neighbors as a devoted husband. The Peytos were married 22 years ago and had no children.

Soviets Begin Big

its," but it was believed some citizens not sympathetic with the Communists might risk harboring or aiding anti-Red fugitives.

In a new move to win support for its Communist Policies and calm the current unrest, the East German government today slashed prices for 12,000 kinds of food and consumer goods. The price level still was far above that in West Germany, however.

The official Soviet newspaper Taegliche Rundschau demanded in an editorial yesterday that the Soviet Zone government back up the price reductions by cutting its expenses and enforcing a "more economical use of state funds" in nationalized industries.

The paper advised government officials to "show the same economical housekeeping as good German housewives."

Cattlemen Told Supports Would Raise Obstacles

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson today told a caravan of cattlemen, seeking government supports for cattle prices, that he has an "open mind." But he said a support program would raise tremendous obstacles.

Benson drew a burst of applause from the 350 cattlemen from 30 states when he said he would consider the facts supporting their request for price supports on cattle.

But only a handful of cattlemen applauded when the agriculture secretary said that so far he is incluned to believe that an indirect program, such as is already underway, is the more practical and feasible policy of supporting cattle prices.

Cites Past Efforts

The government is now buying meat for school lunch and other programs in indirect support of the market.

Benson cited past efforts to put rigid government support prices under perishable goods. He said a program was a "dismal failure" when it was tried for hogs, and a "fiasco" when applied to potatoes.

"I don't say it's not possible for cattle," he added, "but it would be a terrible thing if we got into this program and found it wouldn't work."

Benson met with the cattlemen in the Agriculture Department Auditorium.

C of C Now Has 400 Paid Members

Four hundred Kingston Chamber of Commerce memberships have been paid for 1953-54. The 400th membership was received today. This is the number of paid memberships actually received since the beginning of the fiscal year May 1.

The recent one-day check up resulted in 19 memberships being received, 10 of which were accompanied by checks. In addition, 21 annual memberships become payable between now and March 1. This number plus the others who asked to be billed cause the membership committee to be optimistic about the possibility of reaching the goal of 450 members by the end of the fiscal year, still over six months away.

The Chamber office is now in the process of preparing a complete list of all active members which the by-laws require to be sent to all members for nominating purposes on or about Nov. 1. Each voting member is asked to nominate seven persons of their choice as director for a term of three years.

La Rosa Bides His Time on Outcome Of Godfrey Break

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Singer Julius La Rosa, after his first television appearance since being fired by Arthur Godfrey, says he still does not know whether the events of the past week have been a break.

"Time will tell," added the 24-year-old Brooklynite who for two years had been a "little Godfrey" and last night started a career as a television star in his own right.

He made the change with his parents watching from the audience and a host of teen age fans shouting encouragement on the sidewalks outside the studio.

La Rosa appeared on the Ed Sullivan "Toast of the Town" TV program over CBS. Cheers greeted his rendition of the song, "Eh Cumpari," which he made popular in a recording.

First Since Release

It was the singer's first TV performance since Godfrey a week ago today gave La Rosa his walking papers during a morning broadcast.

Godfrey followed up this action with a news conference at which he accused La Rosa of having lost his humility. Then during a television interview Friday Godfrey said he just wanted to do the young man a favor and allow him to go on to bigger things; if time had not run out on last Monday's program, Godfrey said, he would have given La Rosa a bigger send-off.

Says Violation Done

A television official, who declined to be identified, said last night that the right explanation of the incident was the one originally given by Godfrey. The subject of humility, the official indicated, was brought into the fore by La Rosa's getting himself an outside manager in violation of an agreement with Godfrey.

La Rosa made no direct reference to Godfrey during last night's program. However, the crooner later said he guessed Godfrey's television statement Friday was "his message to me—which I appreciate."

For the events of the past week La Rosa had this two-word summary in boby-sox terminology: "Crazy cute."

Turning to the future, he said that outside of scheduled appearances on Sullivan's program "the only offers I know of are the ones I've read about in the papers."

Minister Raps Godfrey

Barre, Vet., Oct. 26 (AP) — The Rev. Emory S. Bucke, a Methodist minister, says the Ten Commandments appeared to have been rewritten during the past week to read:

"Thou shalt worship thy Lord God-frey, and him only shalt thou serve."

Speaking yesterday at a United Protestant service, Dr. Bucke, of the Methodist Publishing House, Boston, said also:

"The plain fact is that no one in history has been able to bluff humility. Genuine humility does not play the part of a 'stupid stooge,' but is a quality of soul which is there by virtue of deep spiritual achievement."

Dr. Bucke was referring to the discharge of singer Julius La Rosa by Arthur Godfrey for having "lost his humility."

Student Returns Bag

Through the honesty of Jimmy Johnson, 13, of 473 Washington avenue, George Bowen of High Falls had restored to him a handbag, containing a considerable sum of money and other valuable articles. Jimmy, a student at the George Washington School, while near Washington avenue and North Front street Saturday observed a bag fall from a passing car. His first thought was to restore it to its owner and he immediately took it to the sheriff's office where the city police was contacted to ascertain if it had been reported lost. Later through the efforts of the sheriff's office staff it was restored to its owner.

Will Refuse Testimony

St. Louis, Oct. 26 (AP)—Police Lt. Louis Shoulders, credited with breaking the Greenlease kidnaping case, said today he will refuse to testify before a federal grand jury which will meet in Kansas City tomorrow to consider the case. Meanwhile a nationwide distribution of serial numbers of the missing $303,720 in ransom money was begun, with authorities here apparently stalled in their search for the money.

Convict Is Put On List of Top 10

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP) — An escaped convict with a long record of desperate deeds today was put on the FBI's list of "10 most wanted men."

He is Sanford Garrison, 53, known as "the human adding machine," who has worked at many racetracks and with racing information agencies. A rapid calculator, his mental arithmetic is reputedly able to outstrip many machines.

Garrison's criminal file runs back to 1925 and includes holdups, kidnaping, burglary, grand larceny, parole violations and prison breaks.

Sentenced to Life

In 1936 he was convicted of setting fire to a roadhouse in Campbell county, Ky., during a gambling feud. The resulting explosion killed a five-year-old child. Garrison was convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. However, he was subsequently turned over to Alabama authorities who wanted him on an old grand larceny charge.

Frequently in and out of prison he was at Atmore (Ala.) State Prison Farm in August 1952, serving a life sentence for robbery, when he and 10 other convicts made a getaway by stealing prison equipment with which they cut through a cell block wall, forced an iron door and tunneled their way out.

The FBI described Garrison as a desperate criminal.

Two Persons Hurt Slightly in Four Weekend Crashes

Two persons were injured slightly in four local traffic mishaps over the weekend, three of them during Sunday's rain.

Judith Dolan, 14, of Poughkeepsie, suffered injuries of the back, head and right shoulder when two sedans collided on Broadway near St. James street Sunday.

A police report at 10 p. m., said the sedan of Benjamin Murell, 35, of 22 Warren street, Hudson, and the car of William E. Dolan, 43, of 119 North Clinton street, Poughkeepsie, were both headed south on Broadway when they collided.

The injured girl was taken to a Poughkeepsie hospital for treatment, the report said.

Man Says Killing Was Act of Mercy

Linden, N. J., Oct. 26 (AP)—A factory worker told police a story yesterday of how he hit his paralyzed wife with a hammer and then strangled her because "she wanted me to kill her."

John Peyto, 49, showed up at police headquarters to say he killed his 46-year-old wife, Anna, out of mercy.

While Detectives took his statement, police went to the Peyto apartment to check on his story.

There they found his wife lying face up in her blood-spattered bed. Peyto was quoted as saying he beat her with a diaper-wrapped hammer and then strangled her with an electric power cord.

Peyto said he then placed a crucifix on her breast and a string of Rosary beads in her hands.

His wife, he said, had been depressed since she suffered a stroke 10 months ago that left her bedridden.

He said Mrs. Peyto wakened him at 3 a. m. yesterday and asked him, as she had done previously, to kill her. He said he thought it over for about five hours, and then did it.

Peyto was described by neighbors as a devoted husband. The Peytos were married 22 years ago and had no children.

Parade for Dean Today

Soviets Begin Big

its," but it was believed some citizens not sympathetic with the Communists might risk harboring or aiding anti-Red fugitives.

In a new move to win support for its Communist Policies and calm the current unrest, the East German government today slashed prices for 12,000 kinds of food and consumer goods. The price level still was far above that in West Germany, however.

The official Soviet newspaper Taegliche Rundschau demanded in an editorial yesterday that the Soviet Zone government back up the price reductions by cutting its expenses and enforcing a "more economical use of state funds" in nationalized industries.

The paper advised government officials to "show the same economical housekeeping as good German housewives."

Cattlemen Told Supports Would Raise Obstacles

Washington, Oct. 26 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson today told a caravan of cattlemen, seeking government supports for cattle prices, that he has an "open mind." But he said a support program would raise tremendous obstacles.

Benson drew a burst of applause from the 350 cattlemen from 30 states when he said he would consider the facts supporting their request for price supports on cattle.

But only a handful of cattlemen applauded when the agriculture secretary said that so far he is incluned to believe that an indirect program, such as is already underway, is the more practical and feasible policy of supporting cattle prices.

Cites Past Efforts

The government is now buying meat for school lunch and other programs in indirect support of the market.

Benson cited past efforts to put rigid government support prices under perishable goods. He said a program was a "dismal failure" when it was tried for hogs, and a "fiasco" when applied to potatoes.

"I don't say it's not possible for cattle," he added, "but it would be a terrible thing if we got into this program and found it wouldn't work."

Benson met with the cattlemen in the Agriculture Department Auditorium.

C of C Now Has 400 Paid Members

Four hundred Kingston Chamber of Commerce memberships have been paid for 1953-54. The 400th membership was received today. This is the number of paid memberships actually received since the beginning of the fiscal year May 1.

The recent one-day check up resulted in 19 memberships being received, 10 of which were accompanied by checks. In addition, 21 annual memberships become payable between now and March 1. This number plus the others who asked to be billed cause the membership committee to be optimistic about the possibility of reaching the goal of 450 members by the end of the fiscal year, still over six months away.

The Chamber office is now in the process of preparing a complete list of all active members which the by-laws require to be sent to all members for nominating purposes on or about Nov. 1. Each voting member is asked to nominate seven persons of their choice as director for a term of three years.

Plunket Opens Democratic Drive; FitzGerald Speaks

Speaking at the opening Democratic rally here Saturday night, Chairman Thomas Plunket pointed out the significance and importance of citizens going to the polls in large numbers and indicating their opinions of the issues involved in a political campaign, for only in this way can our democracy survive. I am sure that many of you know, as I do, he said, that there are people who seldom vote, but who find plenty of time to criticize politicians and office holders. They are inclined to sneer at public officers and rant loudly against political leaders, but they show no interest in taking advantage of the one great weapon they hold against political leadership that has lost the faith and confidence of the people. That is their vote for or against that leadership.

It seems to me that one of the important things to keep in mind is that, no matter what we may think about men and issues, so long as we have intellectual honesty and faith in our country, and show that faith by going to the polls and telling the political leaders how we feel and think, we cannot fail to maintain our free society and that is democracy in its finest flower.

In presenting Gerald E. FitzGerald, the democratic candidate for mayor, Chairman Plunket said he is a business man whose experience required him over a 25-year period to handle funds of his own and others and his past and present employment has given him vast experience in dealing with the public, contractors and laboring men. He is not a lawyer, and very frankly, Plunket said, we do not believe that a lawyer should be mayor of this city.

Continuing, he declared, that a businessman must, to carry on a successful business, have men on his team who are sympathetic to and will support his fiscal policies and program. It is, therefore, important that you elect not only a democratic mayor, but a democratic alderman-at-large and a democratic alderman from each of the respective wards, he said.

Your city also should be represented on the county board of supervisors in order to carry on the two party system in the county, he asserted.

The democratic candidate for mayor spoke in part as follows:

I have not held any political office, nor am I a professional man such as a doctor or lawyer. For the past 25 years, however, I have had continuous experience in the field of business. My first business training was in the clothing business. Sometime later I was the manager for a period of over three years of the Dunlop Tire Store here in Kingston. That, of course, was a retail business. Thereafter I gained experience in the wholesale field, when, for three years, I managed a business exclusively engaged in wholesale, rather than retailing merchandising. Following this venture, and for the next 12 years, I was an agent for the Prudential Insurance Company, meeting and making friends with so many people here in Kingston. During those years, as I was privileged to go into the homes of so many of our citizens, I learned a great deal about the people and the many problems which face the average person, and the average homeowner and his family. I became aware of the difficulty that many fine people faced in trying to give their family the essentials, and a few of the little luxuries, in the face of ever increasing real property taxes.

Since 1948 I have been, and still am, office manager for the Cabot Construction Corporation. I certainly do not make any personal claim for the success of that corporation. I would like to mention, however, that the Cabot Construction Corporation deals in work on large construction projects, and necessarily purchases and maintains heavy duty construction equipment.

That brings the story of my business background up to date. I would very much like to be the business manager of our municipality as its mayor. If you choose to elect me to this high public office I assure you that no outside business, profession or occupation would occupy any of my time. I would be your full-time mayor and my efforts and energies would constantly be devoted to the welfare of all the people. As far as appointments are concerned, it would be my policy to fill vacancies so as to place the affairs of our city in the hands of sound, capable men of character and principle. This you deserve, and you should be satisfied with nothing less than this.

The City of Kingston is like any other million dollar corporation. It requires an efficient and capable administration of sound businessmen, ready, able and willing to devote their full time energies to the constant discharge of their official duties. I listened with interest to the opening address of the Republican candidate for mayor. I heard, however, no reference at all to his business experience. Of course, I would like to know what has been his business background, and I am sure you are entitled to be told that.

I heard the Republican candidate state in his radio address that one of the city's reservoirs, which he identified as Reservoir No. 1, should be sold. This was based on a report that the water in that reservoir was an "unsatisfactory source of supply." He gave no facts or figures whatsoever concerning the situation. He did not discuss whether such condition could be corrected. He did not discuss intelligently with you the cost of such source of water supply, or the expense of maintaining this reservoir. All he did was glibly assert that it should be sold.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, I believe the approach taken by the Republican candidate is not a very businesslike attitude. That is probably because the Republican candidate has held political appointments for so many years, and has not had business training, which is so essential in the handling of municipal affairs. I can tell you frankly and truthfully that I would not recommend the sale of any city property, especially a source of water supply, without a far more careful consideration of the entire problem and the future needs of the city beforehand. I would want to know, as you would too, whether the condition of this source of water supply could be eliminated. I would want to know just how much water this reservoir furnishes or could furnish. I would want to determine if this supply of water could be used to supplement the present water supply in our city. You and I would want to know if this source of water supply would be a reserve for future development of our city, or for possible use in the event of atomic attack. Water is one of our most precious resources, and we certainly would not want to squander it now, only to be faced with additional needs in the future. Surely every citizen of Kingston was impressed with the importance of water this past entire summer, and the many necessary restrictions that were necessarily imposed upon its use.

Might Slow Activities

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—The New York-New Jersey Waterfront Commission reports that normal activities in the port of New York may be slowed at the end of November because of delay by shipping and stevedoring firms in submitting license applications. The commission, which takes over Dec. 1 in a waterfront cleanup program, has the duty of licensing the operating companies and registering dock workers, among other things.

FEDERAL TAX DODGERS

Senator John J. Williams of Delaware, who has exposed a number of tax frauds in the past, recently revealed that an estimated 25,000 federal employes are evading the payment of income taxes. Even more shocking is the fact that the government is powerless to act either to collect the taxes or to punish the offenders.

Federal employes are subject to withholding taxes which are deducted from their pay. In many cases, however, the amount of tax due is greater than the amount withheld. By filing a tax return the employe of the government who wishes to dodge the additional payment makes himself immune from prosecution. He then simply refuses to pay the amount due. A federal law prohibits the government from attaching the salaries of federal employes. A Civil Service Commission rule states that civil service employes cannot be disciplined or fired for non-payment of bills or taxes.

Senator Williams intends to introduce a bill which would plug this loophole. Congress would do well to give the matter early attention. No one who deliberately evades the responsibilities of citizenshp deserves government employment. To allow tax dodgers to continue in their immunity would be unfair to the federal employes who do pay their taxes and to the millions of other taxpayers who would not dare to evade payments.

Italian officials are unhappy about a 24-hour strike that was called by the Communists. A few Brooklyn fans are still upset by the ones called by the umpires in the World Series.

OUR BROTHER'S KEEPER

Throughout the world today it is necessary for the more fortunate to give of their plenty to help those who do not have enough. From time to time we are called on to contribute to local charities as well as to organizations which attempt to provide the necessities of life to people in far off places.

The vast improvements made in communications and transportation have brought all the various parts of the world closer together. Today we know of the famine or the flood in another country and if we send help it can reach the people who need it many times faster than it could have even a decade ago. Newspapers are able to report on the needy in other parts of the world and tell their story to those who can do something about it.

It was once possible to restrict the term neighbor to people who lived within a particular area in relation to the one in which we lived. Today that is no longer so, for the epidemic or the drouth in one part of the world affects every other part. We have truly reached the stage where we are our brother's keeper and where we must consider all men our brothers.

Note to the Russians: At least you don't have to worry about the traffic congestion. In your land only one person in every one hundred and seven owns a motor vehicle. Here it is one in every three.

TRAIN STEALER

A man was arrested recently for trying to steal a freight train. The story told of his arrest and confinement but gave few other details. What did he intend to do with it? You can't park a train in the back yard and explain to those who inquire with the traditional chicken thief answer that "it just followed me home."

For that matter, with parking places for automobiles so difficult to find, a freight train could prove to be a downright liability. It could lead to even deeper crimes. First you steal a train, then you have to steal a station to keep it in. Who can tell where the chain would end?

Law abiding citizens have reason to rejoice, however, at the rapidity with which the authorities prevented the would be train stealer from making off with his loot. Our confidence in the detective powers of police would have been shaken indeed had he succeeded. We would never have been able to wake up in the morning with any certainty that the battleship Missouri was where we had left it when we went to bed.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

The Chinese and North Korean prisoners of war, who defied the Communist "explainers," have demonstrated an East Asiatic characteristic which perhaps only those who have lived in those countries really understand. The boycott, the sitdown strike, the universal shutting of shops, students' strikes and similar acts of resistance have long been practiced in Asia. Gandhi's concepts of passive resistance might have been influenced by Tolstoy's ideas, but they did not originate with the Russian. They are normal to Asia.

In the old days, when the Emperor of China sent an official, a governor, a magistrate, or tax collector to an area, the people tolerated him if he showed justice, which meant that he functioned according to the traditional Confucian moral precepts which were within the tradition of the people and therefore understood by all.

If, however, the official bedevilled the people, if he extorted more from them than they believed to be reasonable, they simply closed their doors and did nothing. Imagine what could happen to such cities as New York or Washington if everybody did nothing for a ten-day period!

Precisely that happened in the whole of China in May, 1919 and I thrilled to every moment of it because it was a demonstration of pure democracy such as we have never witnessed in the western world. In a country which never held an election, it was a referendum by the people on a great public issue.

What happened was that news came to China that Woodrow Wilson had made a deal at the Paris Peace Conference which was to satisfy everybody and actually pleased no one: He had arranged that the Italians were to get Trieste while the Japanese were to remain in the Chinese province of Shantung. The students in the schools and colleges of Peking and Shanghai heard that their government had decided to agree to the deal.

Thereupon the students went out on strike. Their action was normal to Chinese tradition: When the government does a wrong, the people just do nothing. All activity ceases. The parents of these boys and girls sympathized with them; therefore there was no pressure on anyone to go to school. In a few days, all schools and colleges throughout China shut down. Then the factory workers, railroad workers, government employes quit work to prove that they were as patriotic as the students. Finally, all the merchants shut their shops and boarded up their windows. Even the brothels closed down and I recall a parade in which a sign was carried by "The Patriotic Prostitutes."

It was an amazing, unorganized demonstration of public opinion.

It was wholly effective because China never signed the Paris Treaty. The government bowed to the adamant will of the people. Actually, it is impossible to make such people do anything when they have decided to do nothing.

On May 30, 1925, when an Indian (Sikh) policeman in the employ of the Shanghai Municipal Council shot down a Chinese employed in a Japanese factory, a similar demonstration occurred. Accompanying this was an anti-British boycott of such intensity that it paved the way for the Nationalist revolution and produced a series of new treaties which changed all the relations between Chinese and foreign countries. The people just did not buy British goods. The greatest gain for China was the abolition of extraterritoriality, which has since largely disappeared from the world, except for diplomats and for United Nations personnel in the city of New York.

This characteristic of resistance to force, pressure, coercion is so normal among Chinese that heretofore it has been indomitable. Therefore the "explainers" at Panmunjom failed. Ie could not have been otherwise. The little lies they told, such as that Chiang Kai-shek is dead and that the Chinese Communists have taken Formosa, disclose to me another Chinese characteristic.

It means to me that the Chinese and North Korean prisoners of war have somehow established a contact with the Nationalists in Formosa. It will not be believed in our sophisticated America, but in the 1919 resistance, there were no telegraphs, no telephones, no radios, no usual means of communications in the modern world; yet 48 hours after Shanghai students left their schools, the enitre student body in the 4,000,000 square miles of China was out. Everywhere committees had come into existence. Old people have curious ways.

That Body of Yours

By JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

MENINGITIS

During the flu epidemic of 1918-19, a number of cases of meningitis (inflammation of the brain) were sent to our base hospital. Despite all forms of treatment, including removel of some of the fluid from the spinal column, only one of our patients recovered. Two chums from a field hospital arrived at our hospital together and went out of hospital a week later, one dead and the other fully recovered. It is not to be wondered at that physicians and nurses dread the flu and its consequences.

Fortunately, today meningitis is not the dread foe of 1918-19. In the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Hattie E. Alexander, New York, states: "As a result of extraordinary progress in the development of antibacterial agents (drugs which destroy harmful organisms), it has been possible for several years to obtain a cure in almost all cases of the most frequently occurring varieties of meningitis. Clearly the death rate has been greatly reduced; few children die now of meningitis, usually leaving brain uninjured. When damage or injury does occur, it is because of late diagnosis, not recognizing the disease soon enough.

"Rapid recognition of the organisms causing meningitis is essential for best results, especially in those patients who are victims of severe infections and therefore have the greatest need for early treatment. It is possible to discover the organism causing the infection and estimate the severity of infection within 30 minutes after the spinal fluid reaches the laboratory." When organism is not recognized early, the infectious agent can usually be grown and identified within 12 to 16 hours. While most hospitals are not equipped to make such a rapid diagnosis, if the 100-per-cent-recovery rate is to be approached this service must be made available in the future by all hospitals.

As soon as the causative organism is discovered, it must be removed in the shortest possible time. Dr. Alexander gives a list of some of the multiple drugs effective against organisms that are common causes of meningitis—rabbit serum, aureomycin, streptomycin, penicillin, sulfonamide, polymyxin and others.

When I remember our almost complete lack of success in treating meningitis in 1918-1919, and see how the death rate is now almost nothing, I realize how grateful we should all be to our patient physicians and research workers.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, (NEA) — Former Judge Stanley N. Barnes of California has been most quiet and retiring in the five months he has been assistant attorney general in charge of the Antitrust division. But in a speech before the California Bar Association, which did not get the national attention it deserved, Barnes let go a blockbuster. It was aimed at delays before U. S courts, the needless waste of time before hearing officers of the federal government's sprawling network of 56 administrative agencies, and lawyers in general.

The general criticism of legal red tape, about which Barnes spoke, was the frequently heard plea of the average little guys embroiled in a lawsuit. As Barnes quoted this client, he wails:

"Why can't I get up there and say it in my own words? Why do judges and lawyers keep butting in? Why do they prevent me from saying what I want to say, the way I want to say it?"

In the time he has been in Washington, Barnes declared, he has come to these conclusions:

There exists among the bench and bar a widespread dissatisfaction with existing legal processes, but this feeling is the delayed expression of the same conclusion reached earlier by the average client.

Hiring More Judges

Barnes charged both the judges and the lawyers with failure to correct this situation. For years, he said, the obvious answer to congested calendars has been "Get more judges." This is not enough, he declared.

In California, he said, the average interval between the time a case is at issue and the time of trial is from four months to a year. In eight states the lag is even longer—Connecticut, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, Wisconsin. The national average is just under a year for jury cases, and just under six months for nonjury cases.

In the 86 federal court districts, the average delay time in 1952 was seven months. The number of untried cases pending in federal courts has risen from 30,000 in 1941 too ver 60,000 in 1952.

One remedy proposed to relieve the log jam has been to take personal injury cases out of the courts and put them before an administrative agency. This prompted him to take a look at the existing federal administrative agencies.

Three such agencies were created by the first Congress in 1789. Before the Civil War there were 11. Of the 56 today, the five largest in the fiscal year 1951 held over 5000 administrative hearings. This is about half the number of civil and criminal federal court cases in the same year.

Administrative Agencies

But there were 215 federal district judges that year, while there were 273 federal hearing officers for the administrative agencies. In some administrative hearings, Barnes said, "the records are infinitely longer than they would have been in court proceedings, and filled with irrevant and redundant material." Also, hearings before these agencies are often far more expensive than court trials.

In the famous "bread-softener" case, for instance, Federal Food and Drug Administration hearings, begun in 1941, were suspended during the war, reactivated in 1946. The case took 10 months. There were 17,000 pages of testimony and 497 exhibits.

"If you imagine the American businessman or labor leader will forever put up with processes which do not function with the accuracy and expedition which he requires for his working purposes, you credit him with less ingenuity and independence than I do," Judge Barnes said.

"He will not continue to pay a hundred thousand dollars for a product he knows is worth only ten thousand. He will not repeatedly wait years for a decision he knows could be reached in weeks. He will not indefinitely permit disputed issues to be buried in irrelevancies and thus lost instead of being decided."

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Oct. 25, 1933—A church hall was being used for classes after a flood damaged the Mt. Tremper school.

John Henry Berger, of Hudson street, died.

Mrs. Bernard T. Donovan, of Delaware avenue, died.

Oct. 26, 1933—Harry Halverson was elected president of the Kingston Kiwanis Club.

Claude S. Middagh, of Port Ewen and Miss Edith F. Leverich, of Abruyn street, were married at Cornwall.

Morris Kaplan was re-elected president of the Uptown Business Men's Association for his fifth term.

Oct. 25, 1943—Miss Katherine Guldy, of Hunter street, and Pvt. John Mayer, U. S. Army, of Levan street, were married Oct. 24.

Twenty-two head of livestock, including 16 high grade cows, were lost when fire levelled barns on the Louis Gippert farm, north of Mt. Marion.

Oct. 26, 1943—Junior Red Cross members at Kingston High School were making Christmas cards and other items to be sent to army and navy hospitals.

The county received from the state $39,453.32 as its share of alcoholic beverage taxes for the quarter which ended Sept. 30.

Shokan

Shokan, Oct. 24—Mrs. John L. Nelson of Mt. Vernon spent Sunday touring the reservoir country and looking over the free exhibits at the corner store museum of antiques. Mrs. Nelson, who writes under the pen name of Tora Nelson, and her husband, also a writer, formerly lived in the southwest where they did considerable exploring.

Morton Hendrickson, Jr., who with his parents lived on the mountain road for a time, has recovered from his illness and is now employed.

Ruth Lawlor, local storekeeper, recently organized a blood bank for the benefit of Virginia Rossman, local young woman now a patient in a New York hospital, and has announced a list of donors to the bank as follows: Bernard Stall, Dorothy Warasilis, Herman Wendt, George Hauser, Louis Berger, Duane Winnie, Dan Cardivale, Balthaser Vollmer, Bill and Helen Short, Louis Whalen, Rosetta Colange, William Stahl, Edward Dunn, Dorothy Burns, Helen Shank, Lillian and Paul Fleischmann and Joe Weinstein.

Callers in the village center Monday included J. E. Lenahan of the Weeks avenue section of Cornwall. Lenahan pursues the interesting hobby of fashioning items patterned after early American hardware.

An anniversary on Saturday, Oct. 24 was that of Robert and Lily (MacDonough) Secor, Kingston couple who made their home here for many years. They were married in 1900 by the Rev O. P. Dales, pastor of the Methodist Church in the old village of Shokan.

One would have to deal in superlatives to adequately picture the grand display of massed blooms in the Robert Benoit dooryard flower garden this autumn. Nothing quite like it in this part of Olive, every one says. The Benoit home is the one time Cyrus Cudney farmhouse on the Ashokan hill road.

Kenneth Davis, who with his wife and small son recently moved from Shokan to their new home in the Lyonsville area, now has employment at the Stone Ridge white mice farm where the rodents are bred and sold for experimental purposes.

The local real estate market, practically stagnant during the spring and summer, has stepped up appreciably since Labor Day. Transfers of building lots and dwellings is definitely on the upswing in Shokan where several homes are reported to have changed hands in the past three weeks. Indications are that completion of the thruway will result in a great demand for building sites in the scenic reservoir country.

Secret Service

The first U. S. Secret Service was organized in 1864, with 28 districts under the Treasury Department, for the detection and arrest of counterfeiters, etc. Originally, it was not created by law nor recognized by Congress.

Poll Showing Will Bring About Much Discussion of Probable Causes

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 26—The drop of 10 points in President Eisenhower's popularity—from 75 per cent in mid-September to 65 per cent today, as reported in the latest Gallup poll—will start considerable discussion of the probable causes.

As Dr. Gallup points out, it is not unusual for wide fluctuations in a President's popularity to be recorded during his administration. Thus Mr. Truman started out with an all-time high of 87 per cent in 1945 when he took office, and went down to 43 per cent at the end of the year, and actually hit a low of 32 per cent within 15 months before starting upward again, yet it will be recalled that he won his election in 1948.

While the Gallup survey shows defections in all groups and sections, it is interesting to note that those who disapproved of the Eisenhower record to date gave as their reasons: Failure to fulfill promises, failure to cut taxes, lack of leadership, lack of accomplishment, no improvement in economic conditions, caused unemployment, favors big business and doesn't help the worker, hasn't helped the farmer, golfs too much and takes too many vacations.

Analyzing these reasons, they can be attributed in large part to the bad public relations at the White House. This doesn't mean that they haven't very good press-relations officers there, because they really have. But public relations isn't a mere matter of mechanics in the giving out of information. It's a matter of planning, and not by subordinates but by the President himself. It's something that cannot be delegated to a staff meeting. The man who heads a company or a government agency has to do most of this type of thinking and policy-making himself. The press-relations officer can then articulate it effectively.

Anyone with the most meager knowledge of public relations might have told the President—if he cared to give time to such things—that everything a President does from the time he gets up in the morning till late at night is news. Hence if the only news that comes out—and too much of what the President has really done on public questions and problems has been suppressed—is about golf and vacations, then that's the impression the public will get of what he does with his time.

More than this, somebody has sold the President a gold brick on how he must conduct himself as a "leader." The "left wingers" have been needling him to have a series of rows with members of his own party, thus adding to the confusion they would like to see provoked.

Persons of the opposite ideology have been needling him to take an ultra-conservative stand and let the chips fall where they may. The consequence has been that Mr. Eisenhower has become super-cautious, and has adopted a course in the middle of the road where he gets rocks from both sides.

Mr. Eisenhower instinctively dislikes political partisanship, but he hasn't shown the kind of indignation that should be manifested against the corruption, intrigue and treason that existed in the past administration. He is a sort of let-bygones-be-bygones person who, because of his excessive consideration for his predecessors, has not yet told the American people in what a mess he found the national government when he took office. Maybe if he had told—or still will tell—the American people the facts about the way he found things, they will not expect miracles overnight, and will be patient as he tries to clean up "the Washington mess." For it would seem incredible that the American electorate would be permitted to forget the disservice done the country by the corruption and traitorous conduct revealed to have occurred in the last administration.

The American people didn't vote Mr. Eisenhower into office just because he was popular or because the Republican party was popular, but because they were fed up with the Democratic administration. It was a negative verdict—not unlike that of 1932—and the consequence then was that the negative tide against the party which had been ousted continued to rise in 1934 and 1936. It could bring a higher Republican vote in 1954, but not if the Republican administration continues to hide its light under a bushel and ignores the political meaning of controversial problems. Nor can the President continue to think politics is just a minor matter in modern government from which he can remain aloof while a group of amateurs among his subordinates wrestle with "public relations" and he fails to come to grips with sundry questions himself.

Mr. Eisenhower is perhaps the most likable man who has been in the White House since Theodore Roosevelt captivated the affections of the American people. "Ike" wants to be fair, judicial, nonpartisan and modest as he seeks conscientiously to make a good record which he hopes some day the people will know about. But he's been losing valuable time as against the groups that have been sniping at him. Their attacks should never have been ignored. For the best strategy in politics, as in the military game, is to go from a defensive to a counteroffensive at the earliest practicable moment. The Eisenhower administration is on the defensive today.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Violent threats against domestic peace and security have been expressed openly by Dave Beck and Paul Hall, direct-actionists of the union racket, in recent days. Moreover, in two cases, powerful unions have brazenly expressed favor to repulsive criminals and sent them cash gifts.

The taxi-driver who chanced to turn up the murderers of Bobby Greenlease, in St. Louis, was engaged in the commission of a crime when his suspicions were aroused. According to the routine, unchallenged published versions of events, he procured a prostitute for Carl Hall, the murderer. After consorting with her and Hall for some time, the hackman reported to a cop that Hall was throwing money around. Now it is true that a pig may turn up truffles but nobody ever has thought of adorning a pig with a diamond collar for that.

But hard upon the arrest of Hall and his boozy female partner in crime, announcement was made that Dave Beck, the president of the teamsters, personally had given a reward of $500 to the confessed procurer and that the St. Louis Joint Council of Teamsters had given him $500 more. The announcement of the gift by the St. Louis Joint Council said the head of this group was now in New York "helping fight the waterfront mobs." This means that the teamsters' union is trying to seize control of the New York docks and shipping from Joe Ryan's International Longshoremen's Association. Ryan has been repudiated by the AF of L and has lost his charter but is fighting back and there has been wild violence along the waterfront, necessitating the diversion of much of the insufficient police force to riot duty.

Beck is no better than Ryan. And George Meany, the president of the AF of L, who had the gall to peer down his nose at Ryan, was one of those who called on Joe Fay, a spectacular traitor to unions and labor, at Sing Sing. Meany is an old personal friend and close associate of Fay and he tried to get him out of prison.

Beck also expressed sympathy for Fay in a speech at the National Press Club in Washington a few days ago, insisting that Fay had been "victimized" by the corrupt politicians and corrupt unioneers who called on him in Sing Sing and signed petitions for a pardon. Beck held that there was nothing wrong "with sending letters to a parole board" on behalf of this traitor to "labor" and he hedged on the question whether he, himself, had asked that Fay be pardoned. Ryan has never been convicted of anything and he is just as clean as Meany and Beck.

In this speech, Beck expressed his open threat of violence as follows: "It is a dangerous job cleaning up the New York waterfront. Men may be killed trying to do it. The American labor movement at times is a real tough game. Don't tell me that a labor movement of 16 million workers can't develop a political machine."

This threat with inplications of killing was consistent with a warning by Paul Hall published on Sept. 27, apropos. The same warfare for control of the waterfront, Hall, as secretary-treasurer of the Seamen's International Union of the AF of L, was quoted as follows: "If we can swing a bat to help you, we'll swing it." He was addressing the anti-Ryan forces.

Two days later the police arrested a man riding a sound truck in the dock region who was described as a member of Hall's union and confiscated two pig

Questions—Answers

Q—Are all heavenly bodies sphered?

A—No, many are not. For exemple, the nebulae are very irregular in shape; also the tiny asteroid planets which seem to be chunks of rock of irregular shape. Even Earth is not truly spherical, but is flattened at the poles.

FEDERAL TAX DODGERS

Senator John J. Williams of Delaware, who has exposed a number of tax frauds in the past, recently revealed that an estimated 25,000 federal employes are evading the payment of income taxes. Even more shocking is the fact that the government is powerless to act either to collect the taxes or to punish the offenders.

Federal employes are subject to withholding taxes which are deducted from their pay. In many cases, however, the amount of tax due is greater than the amount withheld. By filing a tax return the employe of the government who wishes to dodge the additional payment makes himself immune from prosecution. He then simply refuses to pay the amount due. A federal law prohibits the government from attaching the salaries of federal employes. A Civil Service Commission rule states that civil service employes cannot be disciplined or fired for non-payment of bills or taxes.

Senator Williams intends to introduce a bill which would plug this loophole. Congress would do well to give the matter early attention. No one who deliberately evades the responsibilities of citizenshp deserves government employment. To allow tax dodgers to continue in their immunity would be unfair to the federal employes who do pay their taxes and to the millions of other taxpayers who would not dare to evade payments.

Italian officials are unhappy about a 24-hour strike that was called by the Communists. A few Brooklyn fans are still upset by the ones called by the umpires in the World Series.

OUR BROTHER'S KEEPER

Throughout the world today it is necessary for the more fortunate to give of their plenty to help those who do not have enough. From time to time we are called on to contribute to local charities as well as to organizations which attempt to provide the necessities of life to people in far off places.

The vast improvements made in communications and transportation have brought all the various parts of the world closer together. Today we know of the famine or the flood in another country and if we send help it can reach the people who need it many times faster than it could have even a decade ago. Newspapers are able to report on the needy in other parts of the world and tell their story to those who can do something about it.

It was once possible to restrict the term neighbor to people who lived within a particular area in relation to the one in which we lived. Today that is no longer so, for the epidemic or the drouth in one part of the world affects every other part. We have truly reached the stage where we are our brother's keeper and where we must consider all men our brothers.

Note to the Russians: At least you don't have to worry about the traffic congestion. In your land only one person in every one hundred and seven owns a motor vehicle. Here it is one in every three.

TRAIN STEALER

A man was arrested recently for trying to steal a freight train. The story told of his arrest and confinement but gave few other details. What did he intend to do with it? You can't park a train in the back yard and explain to those who inquire with the traditional chicken thief answer that "it just followed me home."

For that matter, with parking places for automobiles so difficult to find, a freight train could prove to be a downright liability. It could lead to even deeper crimes. First you steal a train, then you have to steal a station to keep it in. Who can tell where the chain would end?

Law abiding citizens have reason to rejoice, however, at the rapidity with which the authorities prevented the would be train stealer from making off with his loot. Our confidence in the detective powers of police would have been shaken indeed had he succeeded. We would never have been able to wake up in the morning with any certainty that the battleship Missouri was where we had left it when we went to bed.

'These Days'

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

The Chinese and North Korean prisoners of war, who defied the Communist "explainers," have demonstrated an East Asiatic characteristic which perhaps only those who have lived in those countries really understand. The boycott, the sitdown strike, the universal shutting of shops, students' strikes and similar acts of resistance have long been practiced in Asia. Gandhi's concepts of passive resistance might have been influenced by Tolstoy's ideas, but they did not originate with the Russian. They are normal to Asia.

In the old days, when the Emperor of China sent an official, a governor, a magistrate, or tax collector to an area, the people tolerated him if he showed justice, which meant that he functioned according to the traditional Confucian moral precepts which were within the tradition of the people and therefore understood by all.

If, however, the official bedevilled the people, if he extorted more from them than they believed to be reasonable, they simply closed their doors and did nothing. Imagine what could happen to such cities as New York or Washington if everybody did nothing for a ten-day period!

Precisely that happened in the whole of China in May, 1919 and I thrilled to every moment of it because it was a demonstration of pure democracy such as we have never witnessed in the western world. In a country which never held an election, it was a referendum by the people on a great public issue.

What happened was that news came to China that Woodrow Wilson had made a deal at the Paris Peace Conference which was to satisfy everybody and actually pleased no one: He had arranged that the Italians were to get Trieste while the Japanese were to remain in the Chinese province of Shantung. The students in the schools and colleges of Peking and Shanghai heard that their government had decided to agree to the deal.

Thereupon the students went out on strike. Their action was normal to Chinese tradition: When the government does a wrong, the people just do nothing. All activity ceases. The parents of these boys and girls sympathized with them; therefore there was no pressure on anyone to go to school. In a few days, all schools and colleges throughout China shut down. Then the factory workers, railroad workers, government employes quit work to prove that they were as patriotic as the students. Finally, all the merchants shut their shops and boarded up their windows. Even the brothels closed down and I recall a parade in which a sign was carried by "The Patriotic Prostitutes."

It was an amazing, unorganized demonstration of public opinion.

It was wholly effective because China never signed the Paris Treaty. The government bowed to the adamant will of the people. Actually, it is impossible to make such people do anything when they have decided to do nothing.

On May 30, 1925, when an Indian (Sikh) policeman in the employ of the Shanghai Municipal Council shot down a Chinese employed in a Japanese factory, a similar demonstration occurred. Accompanying this was an anti-British boycott of such intensity that it paved the way for the Nationalist revolution and produced a series of new treaties which changed all the relations between Chinese and foreign countries. The people just did not buy British goods. The greatest gain for China was the abolition of extraterritoriality, which has since largely disappeared from the world, except for diplomats and for United Nations personnel in the city of New York.

This characteristic of resistance to force, pressure, coercion is so normal among Chinese that heretofore it has been indomitable. Therefore the "explainers" at Panmunjom failed. Ie could not have been otherwise. The little lies they told, such as that Chiang Kai-shek is dead and that the Chinese Communists have taken Formosa, disclose to me another Chinese characteristic.

It means to me that the Chinese and North Korean prisoners of war have somehow established a contact with the Nationalists in Formosa. It will not be believed in our sophisticated America, but in the 1919 resistance, there were no telegraphs, no telephones, no radios, no usual means of communications in the modern world; yet 48 hours after Shanghai students left their schools, the entire student body in the 4,000,000 square miles of China was out. Everywhere committees had come into existence. Old people have curious ways.

That Body of Yours

MENINGITIS

During the flu epidemic of 1918-19, a number of cases of meningitis (inflammation of the brain) were sent to our base hospital. Despite all forms of treatment, including removel of some of the fluid from the spinal column, only one of our patients recovered. Two chums from a field hospital arrived at our hospital together and went out of hospital a week later, one dead and the other fully recovered. It is not to be wondered at that physicians and nurses dread the flu and its consequences.

Fortunately, today meningitis is not the dread foe of 1918-19. In the Journal of the American Medical Association, Dr. Hattie E. Alexander, New York, states: "As a result of extraordinary progress in the development of antibacterial agents (drugs which destroy harmful organisms), it has been possible for several years to obtain a cure in almost all cases of the most frequently occurring varieties of meningitis. Clearly the death rate has been greatly reduced; few children die now of meningitis, usually leaving brain uninjured. When damage or injury does occur, it is because of late diagnosis, not recognizing the disease soon enough.

"Rapid recognition of the organisms causing meningitis is essential for best results, especially in those patients who are victims of severe infections and therefore have the greatest need for early treatment. It is possible to discover the organism causing the infection and estimate the severity of infection within 30 minutes after the spinal fluid reaches the laboratory." When organism is not recognized early, the infectious agent can usually be grown and identified within 12 to 16 hours. While most hospitals are not equipped to make such a rapid diagnosis, if the 100-per-cent-recovery rate is to be approached this service must be made available in the future by all hospitals.

As soon as the causative organism is discovered, it must be removed in the shortest possible time. Dr. Alexander gives a list of some of the multiple drugs effective against organisms that are common causes of meningitis—rabbit serum, aureomycin, streptomycin, penicillin, sulfonamide, polymyxin and others.

When I remember our almost complete lack of success in treating meningitis in 1918-1919, and see how the death rate is now almost nothing, I realize how grateful we should all be to our patient physicians and research workers.

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, (NEA) — Former Judge Stanley N. Barnes of California has been most quiet and retiring in the five months he has been assistant attorney general in charge of the Antitrust division. But in a speech before the California Bar Association, which did not get the national attention it deserved, Barnes let go a blockbuster. It was aimed at delays before U. S courts, the needless waste of time before hearing officers of the federal government's sprawling network of 56 administrative agencies, and lawyers in general.

The general criticism of legal red tape, about which Barnes spoke, was the frequently heard plea of the average little guys embroiled in a lawsuit. As Barnes quoted this client, he wails:

"Why can't I get up there and say it in my own words? Why do judges and lawyers keep butting in? Why do they prevent me from saying what I want to say, the way I want to say it?"

In the time he has been in Washington, Barnes declared, he has come to these conclusions:

There exists among the bench and bar a widespread dissatisfaction with existing legal processes, but this feeling is the delayed expression of the same conclusion reached earlier by the average client.

Hiring More Judges

Barnes charged both the judges and the lawyers with failure to correct this situation. For years, he said, the obvious answer to congested calendars has been "Get more judges." This is not enough, he declared.

In California, he said, the average interval between the time a case is at issue and the time of trial is from four months to a year. In eight states the lag is even longer—Connecticut, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, Wisconsin. The national average is just under a year for jury cases, and just under six months for nonjury cases.

In the 86 federal court districts, the average delay time in 1952 was seven months. The number of untried cases pending in federal courts has risen from 30,000 in 1941 too ver 60,000 in 1952.

One remedy proposed to relieve the log jam has been to take personal injury cases out of the courts and put them before an administrative agency. This prompted him to take a look at the existing federal administrative agencies.

Three such agencies were created by the first Congress in 1789. Before the Civil War there were 11. Of the 56 today, the five largest in the fiscal year 1951 held over 5000 administrative hearings. This is about half the number of civil and criminal federal court cases in the same year.

Administrative Agencies

But there were 215 federal district judges that year, while there were 273 federal hearing officers for the administrative agencies. In some administrative hearings, Barnes said, "the records are infinitely longer than they would have been in court proceedings, and filled with irrevant and redundant material." Also, hearings before these agencies are often far more expensive than court trials.

In the famous "bread-softener" case, for instance, Federal Food and Drug Administration hearings, begun in 1941, were suspended during the war, reactivated in 1946. The case took 10 months. There were 17,000 pages of testimony and 497 exhibits.

"If you imagine the American businessman or labor leader will forever put up with processes which do not function with the accuracy and expedition which he requires for his working purposes, you credit him with less ingenuity and independence than I do," Judge Barnes said.

"He will not continue to pay a hundred thousand dollars for a product he knows is worth only ten thousand. He will not repeatedly wait years for a decision he knows could be reached in weeks. He will not indefinitely permit disputed issues to be buried in irrelevancies and thus lost instead of being decided."

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

Oct. 25, 1933—A church hall was being used for classes after a flood damaged the Mt. Tremper school.

John Henry Berger, of Hudson street, died.

Mrs. Bernard T. Donovan, of Delaware avenue, died.

Oct. 26, 1933—Harry Halverson was elected president of the Kingston Kiwanis Club.

Claude S. Middagh, of Port Ewen and Miss Edith F. Leverich, of Abruyn street, were married at Cornwall.

Morris Kaplan was re-elected president of the Uptown Business Men's Association for his fifth term.

Oct. 25, 1943—Miss Katherine Guldy, of Hunter street, and Pvt. John Mayer, U. S. Army, of Levan street, were married Oct. 24.

Twenty-two head of livestock, including 16 high grade cows, were lost when fire levelled barns on the Louis Gippert farm, north of Mt. Marion.

Oct. 26, 1943—Junior Red Cross members at Kingston High School were making Christmas cards and other items to be sent to army and navy hospitals.

The county received from the state $39,453.32 as its share of alcoholic beverage taxes for the quarter which ended Sept. 30.

Shokan

Shokan, Oct. 24—Mrs. John L. Nelson of Mt. Vernon spent Sunday touring the reservoir country and looking over the free exhibits at the corner store museum of antiques. Mrs. Nelson, who writes under the pen name of Tora Nelson, and her husband, also a writer, formerly lived in the southwest where they did considerable exploring.

Morton Hendrickson, Jr., who with his parents lived on the mountain road for a time, has recovered from his illness and is now employed.

Ruth Lawlor, local storekeeper, recently organized a blood bank for the benefit of Virginia Rossman, local young woman now a patient in a New York hospital, and has announced a list of donors to the bank as follows: Bernard Stall, Dorothy Warasilis, Herman Wendt, George Hauser, Louis Berger, Duane Winnie, Dan Cardivale, Balthaser Vollmer, Bill and Helen Short, Louis Whalen, Rosetta Colange, William Stahl, Edward Dunn, Dorothy Burns, Helen Shank, Lillian and Paul Fleischmann and Joe Weinstein.

Callers in the village center Monday included J. E. Lenahan of the Weeks avenue section of Cornwall. Lenahan pursues the interesting hobby of fashioning items patterned after early American hardware.

An anniversary on Saturday, Oct. 24 was that of Robert and Lily (MacDonough) Secor, Kingston couple who made their home here for many years. They were married in 1900 by the Rev O. P. Dales, pastor of the Methodist Church in the old village of Shokan.

One would have to deal in superlatives to adequately picture the grand display of massed blooms in the Robert Benoit dooryard flower garden this autumn. Nothing quite like it in this part of Olive, every one says. The Benoit home is the one time Cyrus Cudney farmhouse on the Ashokan hill road.

Kenneth Davis, who with his wife and small son recently moved from Shokan to their new home in the Lyonsville area, now has employment at the Stone Ridge white mice farm where the rodents are bred and sold for experimental purposes.

The local real estate market, practically stagnant during the spring and summer, has stepped up appreciably since Labor Day. Transfers of building lots and dwellings is definitely on the upswing in Shokan where several homes are reported to have changed hands in the past three weeks. Indications are that completion of the thruway will result in a great demand for building sites in the scenic reservoir country.

Secret Service

The first U. S. Secret Service was organized in 1864, with 28 districts under the Treasury Department, for the detection and arrest of counterfeiters, etc. Originally, it was not created by law nor recognized by Congress.

Today in Washington

Poll Showing Will Bring About Much Discussion of Probable Causes

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Oct. 26—The drop of 10 points in President Eisenhower's popularity—from 75 per cent in mid-September to 65 per cent today, as reported in the latest Gallup poll—will start considerable discussion of the probable causes.

As Dr. Gallup points out, it is not unusual for wide fluctuations in a President's popularity to be recorded during his administration. Thus Mr. Truman started out with an all-time high of 87 per cent in 1945 when he took office, and went down to 43 per cent at the end of the year, and actually hit a low of 32 per cent within 15 months before starting upward again, yet it will be recalled that he won his election in 1948.

While the Gallup survey shows defections in all groups and sections, it is interesting to note that those who disapproved of the Eisenhower record to date gave as their reasons: Failure to fulfill promises, failure to cut taxes, lack of leadership, lack of accomplishment, no improvement in economic conditions, caused unemployment, favors big business and doesn't help the worker, hasn't helped the farmer, golfs too much and takes too many vacations.

Analyzing these reasons, they can be attributed in large part to the bad public relations at the White House. This doesn't mean that they haven't very good press-relations officers there, because they really have. But public relations isn't a mere matter of mechanics in the giving out of information. It's a matter of planning, and not by subordinates but by the President himself. It's something that cannot be delegated to a staff meeting. The man who heads a company or a government agency has to do most of this type of thinking and policy-making himself. The press-relations officer can then articulate it effectively.

Anyone with the most meager knowledge of public relations might have told the President—if he cared to give time to such things—that everything a President does from the time he gets up in the morning till late at night is news. Hence if the only news that comes out—and too much of what the President has really done on public questions and problems has been suppressed—is about golf and vacations, then that's the impression the public will get of what he does with his time.

More than this, somebody has sold the President a gold brick on how he must conduct himself as a "leader." The "left wingers" have been needling him to have a series of rows with members of his own party, thus adding to the confusion they would like to see provoked.

Persons of the opposite ideology have been needling him to take an ultra-conservative stand and let the chips fall where they may. The consequence has been that Mr. Eisenhower has become super-cautious, and has adopted a course in the middle of the road where he gets rocks from both sides.

Mr. Eisenhower instinctively dislikes political partisanship, but he hasn't shown the kind of indignation that should be manifested against the corruption, intrigue and treason that existed in the past administration. He is a sort of let-bygones-be-bygones person who, because of his excessive consideration for his predecessors, has not yet told the American people in what a mess he found the national government when he took office. Maybe if he had told—or still will tell—the American people the facts about the way he found things, they will not expect miracles overnight, and will be patient as he tries to clean up "the Washington mess." For it would seem incredible that the American electorate would be permitted to forget the disservice done the country by the corruption and traitorous conduct revealed to have occurred in the last administration.

The American people didn't vote Mr. Eisenhower into office just because he was popular or because the Republican party was popular, but because they were fed up with the Democratic administration. It was a negative verdict—not unlike that of 1932—and the consequence then was that the negative tide against the party which had been ousted continued to rise in 1934 and 1936. It could bring a higher Republican vote in 1954, but not if the Republican administration continues to hide its light under a bushel and ignores the political meaning of controversial problems. Nor can the President continue to think politics is just a minor matter in modern government from which he can remain aloof while a group of amateurs among his subordinates wrestle with "public relations" and he fails to come to grips with sundry questions himself.

Mr. Eisenhower is perhaps the most likable man who has been in the White House since Theodore Roosevelt captivated the affections of the American people. "Ike" wants to be fair, judicial, nonpartisan and modest as he seeks conscientiously to make a good record which he hopes some day the people will know about. But he's been losing valuable time as against the groups that have been sniping at him. Their attacks should never have been ignored. For the best strategy in politics, as in the military game, is to go from a defensive to a counteroffensive at the earliest practicable moment. The Eisenhower administration is on the defensive today.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Violent threats against domestic peace and security have been expressed openly by Dave Beck and Paul Hall, direct-actionists of the union racket, in recent days. Moreover, in two cases, powerful unions have brazenly expressed favor to repulsive criminals and sent them cash gifts.

The taxi-driver who chanced to turn up the murderers of Bobby Greenlease, in St. Louis, was engaged in the commission of a crime when his suspicions were aroused. According to the routine, unchallenged published versions of events, he procured a prostitute for Carl Hall, the murderer. After consorting with her and Hall for some time, the hackman reported to a cop that Hall was throwing money around. Now it is true that a pig may turn up truffles but nobody ever has thought of adorning a pig with a diamond collar for that.

But hard upon the arrest of Hall and his boozy female partner in crime, announcement was made that Dave Beck, the president of the teamsters, personally had given a reward of $500 to the confessed procurer and that the St. Louis Joint Council of Teamsters had given him $500 more. The announcement of the gift by the St. Louis Joint Council said the head of this group was now in New York "helping fight the waterfront mobs." This means that the teamsters' union is trying to seize control of the New York docks and shipping from Joe Ryan's International Longshoremen's Association. Ryan has been repudiated by the AF of L and has lost his charter but is fighting back and there has been wild violence along the waterfront, necessitating the diversion of much of the insufficient police force to riot duty.

Beck is no better than Ryan. And George Meany, the president of the AF of L, who had the gall to peer down his nose at Ryan, was one of those who called on Joe Fay, a spectacular traitor to unions and labor, at Sing Sing. Meany is an old personal friend and close associate of Fay and he tried to get him out of prison.

Beck also expressed sympathy for Fay in a speech at the National Press Club in Washington a few days ago, insisting that Fay had been "victimized" by the corrupt politicians and corrupt unioneers who called on him in Sing Sing and signed petitions for a pardon. Beck held that there was nothing wrong "with sending letters to a parole board" on behalf of this traitor to "labor" and he hedged on the question whether he, himself, had asked that Fay be pardoned. Ryan has never been convicted of anything and he is just as clean as Meany and Beck.

In this speech, Beck expressed his open threat of violence as follows: "It is a dangerous job cleaning up the New York waterfront. Men may be killed trying to do it. The American labor movement at times is a real tough game. Don't tell me that a labor movement of 16 million workers can't develop a political machine."

This threat with inplications of killing was consistent with a warning by Paul Hall published on Sept. 27, apropos. The same warfare for control of the waterfront. Hall, as secretary-treasurer of the Seamen's International Union of the AF of L, was quoted as follows: "If we can swing a bat to help you, we'll swing it." He was addressing the anti-Ryan forces.

Two days later the police arrested a man riding a sound truck in the dock region who was described as a member of Hall's union and confiscated two pig

Cluett Schantz Is Efficient Sheriff

CLUETT SCHANTZ

Cluett Schantz, the Republican candidate for the office of sheriff in Ulster county, who has capably served in that office for three years, is one of the most widely known men in public life in the entire county.

The Republican candidate for the sheriff's post to succeed himself served the Town of Marlborough for nine years in the Board of Supervisors before he was elected as sheriff three years ago. Recognizing his ability, his colleagues on the board elected him chairman of the supervisors for three successive years. During his last year as a supervisor, he also served as a member of the Ulster County Board of Health.

Schantz is not alone a capable public servant, but also a very popular one. His election to the chairmanship of the Board of Supervisors for three terms was made without opposition from the minority party.

During his term of office on the Board of Supervisors, the new health department was organized and the Tumor Clinic was started during this period.

In the years he has served the county as a public official, he has compiled a record of successful achievements and his knowledge of county activities and municipal affairs eminently qualify him for the duties of the sheriff's office.

He is a member of the Charles Viebey Post of the American Legion, the Highland Masonic Lodge, the Mil-Mar Lions Club and other fraternal organizations.

A lifetime resident of Ulster county, he was born in the town of Lloyd and has been a resident of Marlborough since 1922.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By BILLY ROSE

The Long Arm of Something or Another

By way of Korea, and with an assist from the U. S. mails, a letter arrived this morning from an infantry sergeant who, a brief two years ago, was selling orange drinks in my theatre. After a page of the usual GI gripes, the sergeant sets down a story which he says is almost as popular in the canteens as the famous pin-up calendar of Marilyn Monroe.

In the interests of high art and exact reportage, I'm passing the yarn along. . . .

In the fall of 1943, a group of Boy Scouts in Perth Amboy, New Jersey, set out to collect books and magazines for servicemen overseas. One of the kids, a 12-year-old named Ernie Jaeger, wasn't satisfied with the pile of reading matter he had managed to pick up, and so one evening when his parents were out he swiped an imposing looking volume from the family bookshelf—"The Philosophy of Schopenhauer."

Further a-bustin' with patriotism, the lad took a two-dollar bill from the money he had been saving to buy a bicycle and Scotch-taped it to the title page along with the following note:

Dear Soldier or Sailor,

Here is $2.00. Please have a good time with it. I live at 267 Norfolk avenue, Perth Amboy, New Jersey. Will you please write me a letter and tell about the war? Good luck.

ERNIE JAEGER

The boy never received an answer to his letter, and it was probably due to the fact that none of our soldiers even bothered to open so forbidding a book as the Schopenhauer classic. For one thing, as you'll remember, the most popular reading matter in the last fracas was the line below the pin-up pictures of Jane Russell and Betty Grable. For another, there weren't many men in the service who were interested in having their philosophies retooled. They knew what they wanted: O-U-T.

What actually happened to the volume can, of course, only be guessed at. Chances are, however, it was bundled up by the USO and sent to one of the canteens overseas where it collected dust for the duration. Then, after things in Germany and Japan quieted down, it was probably crated, shipped back to this country and stored in a government warehouse....

The next scene of our story finds us in a fresh locale. The time is the spring of 1953, and we're in a Special Service center in the beat-up town of Solun, Korea. A corporal, back from a stint at the front, enters and goes up to the Wac in charge.

"You don't have to tell me," says the girl. "You're looking for a book by Mickey Spillane. Sorry, no got."

"I was going to ask whether the beer ration had arrived," says the corporal.

"Not yet," says the Wac, "but there's a joint down the street selling Korean beer."

"For that a guy needs money."

"That's something else we no got," says the Wac.

"All right," says the corporal. "So give me a book—any book."

The girl goes to the bookshelf and pulls down the first book that comes to hand—"The Philosophy of Schopenhauer." "Here's a thousand pages of fun," she says.

The soldier takes the book, opens it and on the title page there's a strip of Scotch tape, a note and a two-dollar bill. He grins at the Wac.

"Looks like heavy reading," he says, "but if nobody else wants it—"

Ten minutes later he walks into the joint down the street.

"How much is a bottle of beer?" he says.

"Fifty cents," says the bartender.

"Wrap up two dollars worth," says Corporal Ernie Jaeger.

Is your engine sluggish on hills?
Re-power with Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP*

and only Shell Premium has TCP

The Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years

Shell Premium Gasoline with the Shell-discovered additive TCP boosts power up to 15%, spark plug life up to 150% . . . gives extra mileage, too. That's because it stops the greatest cause of power loss: "wild ping" (pre-ignition knock) and short-circuiting of spark plugs caused by engine deposits.

When your car was new the inside of the engine was clean as a whistle. And that's why it could deliver all the power built into it.

But your engine's power falls off in time, often within only a few thousand miles. That's because certain chemical deposits constantly accumulate in the combustion chambers and on the spark plugs.

In the combustion chambers these deposits become red hot and ignite the fuel-air mixture prematurely. This results in what engineers refer to as "wild ping"—a most severe form of knock. Similar deposits also build up on spark plugs and cause them to short-circuit.

These engine deposits are the greatest cause of power and fuel waste in the majority of cars on the road today.

To stop this waste, Shell Research discovered a unique gasoline additive, TCP. Blended into Shell Premium Gasoline, it is the only solution to the problem of "wild ping" (pre-ignition knock) and spark plug misfiring, caused by engine deposits. It fireproofs the deposits to stop pre-ignition. It changes the character of the deposits to eliminate the short-circuiting of spark plugs.

As a result, you may, by simply changing to Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP, increase your engine's power up to 15%, increase your spark plug life up to 150%, and get extra mileage, too.

Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP is the most significant fuel development since the introduction of tetraethyl lead in 1922.

Shell Premium with TCP Quick to Act

With your first tankful, Shell Premium with TCP additive begins to overcome chemical deposits. So quickly does it act that you'll feel your engine has had a tune-up by the time you've finished the second tankful! Of course, since the deposits are constantly accumulating, continued use of Shell Premium with TCP is the only way to maintain these benefits.

Available only at your Shell Dealer's

Youth Council Formed During Area's Delinquency Meeting

Saugerties, Oct. 26—Formation of a Youth Council was the direct result of the community delinquency meeting held Saturday night at which time the general consensus of those present was that the meeting was a great step in the right direction.

Police Commissioner Eugene F. Thornton explained the Youth Council setup and told those present that he favored the following persons to be included in the Council:

The Rev. Theodore Hammer, the Rev. Matthew Malloy, Peter Williams, town supervisor; Jack Washburn, Dr. Grant Morse, Mrs. Francis Amrod, Albert L. Giannotti, Joseph Benjamin, Joseph Vozdik, Donald Fellows and Bertram W. Burns.

Commissioner Thornton later pointed out that additional members would be chosen for the Council, namely a representative of the Boy Scouts of America.

Council Objectives

Dr. James J. Brennan, director of information planning and public relations of the New York Police Athletic League (PAL), listed the following objectives of the Youth Council:

Investory material and organizational facilities available to the young people.

Determine what is needed and create the new activities.

Discourage indiscriminate arrests for minor infractions by police agencies.

Earlier in the meeting, Dr. Brennan listed the following three basic problems in studying the youth problem:

The home, religious training and education in family and living. Dr. Brennan said these created the personality in the youth.

Most Start in Home

"When one is weak or missing entirely," he said, "that is the cause of the breakdown in moral standards." He added that 85 per cent of the delinquency problems is created in the home.

An interested audience, considered large for a meeting of this type, listened to the various speakers give their views on halting delinquency while it is still a "small" problem.

Police Commissioner Thornton opened the meeting and introduced Mrs. Francis Amrod, president of the Saugerties P-TA, who proceeded to introduce the various speakers.

Town Supervisor Peter Williams asked for Divine guidance for the undertaking in solving the problems at hand.

Explains Techniques

Captain Henry Mulhearn explained how the Juvenile Aid Bureau of New York came into being and also demonstrated techniques used in handling the problems of delinquency in that metropolitan city. Captain Mulhearn is executive officer of the Juvenile Aid Bureau of the New York City Police Department.

Considerable time was consumed during the question and answer period on the matter of progressive education.

The audience was well represented with a cross section of agencies active in youth education. Several members of the clergy were present, a large representation of the P-TA, members of the Boy Scouts of America, District Council, various local and Kingston police officials, educators and members of the Grand Juror's Association of Ulster county.

Teddy, the Cowboy

Theodore Roosevelt entered the New York state legislature as a represnetative in 1881, but retired in 1884 to Dakota, where he lived for three years the life of a cowboy and a deputy sheriff.

WHY THEY SAY:
"We'd Never be Without Father John's Medicine"

In many homes Father John's Medicine is always on hand — because its use has become a habit from one generation to another. Today mothers are giving it to their children because their mothers gave it to them when they were young.

This unusual family confidence is the result of proven merit. Try it for yourself. It has been used by millions for over 95 years.

Youth Council Formed During Area's Delinquency Meeting

Saugerties, Oct. 26—Formation of a Youth Council was the direct result of the community delinquency meeting held Saturday night at which time the general consensus of those present was that the meeting was a great step in the right direction.

Police Commissioner Eugene F. Thornton explained the Youth Council setup and told those present that he favored the following persons to be included in the Council:

The Rev. Theodore Hammer, the Rev. Matthew Malloy, Peter Williams, town supervisor; Jack Washburn, Dr. Grant Morse, Mrs. Francis Amrod, Albert L. Giannotti, Joseph Benjamin, Joseph Vozdik, Donald Fellows and Bertram W. Burns.

Commissioner Thornton later pointed out that additional members would be chosen for the Council, namely a representative of the Boy Scouts of America.

Council Objectives

Dr. James J. Brennan, director of information planning and public relations of the New York Police Athletic League (PAL), listed the following objectives of the Youth Council:

Investory material and organizational facilities available to the young people.

Determine what is needed and create the new activities.

Discourage indiscriminate arrests for minor infractions by police agencies.

Earlier in the meeting, Dr. Brennan listed the following three basic problems in studying the youth problem:

The home, religious training and education in family and living. Dr. Brennan said these created the personality in the youth.

Most Start in Home

"When one is weak or missing entirely," he said, "that is the cause of the breakdown in moral standards." He added that 85 per cent of the delinquency problems is created in the home.

An interested audience, considered large for a meeting of this type, listened to the various speakers give their views on halting delinquency while it is still a "small" problem.

Police Commissioner Thornton opened the meeting and introduced Mrs. Francis Amrod, president of the Saugerties P-TA, who proceeded to introduce the various speakers.

Town Supervisor Peter Williams asked for Divine guidance for the undertaking in solving the problems at hand.

Explains Techniques

Captain Henry Mulhearn explained how the Juvenile Aid Bureau of New York came into being and also demonstrated techniques used in handling the problems of delinquency in that metropolitan city. Captain Mulhearn is executive officer of the Juvenile Aid Bureau of the New York City Police Department.

Considerable time was consumed during the question and answer period on the matter of progressive education.

The audience was well represented with a cross section of agencies active in youth education. Several members of the clergy were present, a large representation of the P-TA, members of the Boy Scouts of America, District Council, various local and Kingston police officials, educators and members of the Grand Juror's Association of Ulster county.

Teddy, the Cowboy

RISK IS EVERYWHERE

My files are bulging with cheap money problems. And with interest rates tending higher and living costs still inflationary, these problems will become more general. There are millions of people in America whose standard of living depends upon savings bank and bond income.

This whole matter can most easily be discussed by relating what happened to the beneficiary of a $100,000 estate. Ten years ago, this amount of capital was invested in high grade government and industrial bonds. Ten different issues were bought. The coupon rates ranged from 2⅜ per cent to 2⅞ per cent. One hundred thousand dollars of these bonds yielded an annual income of about $2,750—2¾ per cent on the average.

At the time the bonds were bought (1943) cheap money was in full sway. The United States government was borrowing $135,000,000,000 at an average cost of 1.979 per cent yearly. Consequently, it was not difficult for the best corporations with high credit ratings to borrow money at from 2⅜ per cent to 2⅞ per cent.

But it should have been obvious that any beneficiary of a $100,000 estate would have a standard of living that yearly income of $2,750 could not maintain. But to those who bought the bonds it was not obvious. And for a decade the beneficiary has had to sell bonds to balance the living budget.

1953 arrives. The $100,000 estate has dwindled to $88,000 and the economic lot of the beneficiary is steadily worsening. Twelve thousand dollars face value of the bonds has been sold of necessity to pay the butcher, baker and candlestick maker. The lowest coupon bonds are being sold at discouraging losses.

Within the past year $2,000 very high grade industrials paying only $47.50 a year, were sold for less than $1,800. Cheap money has come home to haunt an investor who, in buying high grade bonds, thought the soundest thing was being done.

So the problem today is this: with more income absolutely obligatory and with the corpus of the fund having a market value of around $80,000, what should be done? The age of the beneficiary militates against any reduction in living standards. It is a pure investment problem.

All of the bonds are selling under face value. Many of them are long-term. And if interest rates go higher (as they may), the bond prices will go down.

Well, half of the bonds ($44,000) should be sold. They will bring a little more than $40,000. Then this capital should be split up into 10 parts and after ascertaining what income this money should earn—5, 6, 7 per cent—great care should be exercised in making investment choices.

Furthermore, this common and preferred stock fund should be aggressively managed. Remembering that blindness to the evils of cheap money has badly weakened the economic status of this aged beneficiary, the new manager of the fund should be alert to the possibilities of receiving some of the lost capital.

There are thousands of funds similarly locked into cheap money situations. I review this matter here because I do not believe that such problems should be ignored.

If the administration at Washington succeeds in balancing the budget, in reducing taxes and in putting the dollar on a sounder base, then interest rates will go higher. Two and ¾ per cent bonds selling at 89 will go lower and many lower coupon obligations will drop five or 10 points.

Cheap money has proved to be a cruel master in recent years. It has set up problems that only courageous capital managers can properly handle. Buying a high-grade, low-yielding bond at 100 and watching it depreciate to 90 while living costs go up is a disheartening experience.

Such problems should be boldly faced. They should be reduced to writing and then referred to competent bankers, brokers and counselors whose vision takes in shrinking income and expanding costs.

(A) Without adequate information regarding the social and economic status of the apartment and the community, I would say no. I would rather use the $20,000 in buying stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange (on 50 per cent margin, perhaps) that carry less risk and pay high dividends.

Boss—Miss Bond, (growled in exasperation) I am tired of talking to you about your tardiness. I am therefore, suspending you for one day without pay. When would you like to take the day?

I won't taste good." He lifted up his trouser leg, sliced a piece off the calf of his leg and handed it over to the cannibal. "Here," said the explorer, "see for yourself." The native bit into the "meat," then promptly jumped to his feet, spat out the piece of leg and dismissed the cooks. The explorer was set free, with rather uncordial dispatch.

The explorer's only loss was about $50. He had to buy a new cork leg.

Jacoby on Canasta

Bolivia Is Full of Fun

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

I've received a large number of questions about the new game of Bolivia, so it's time to review the way this game is played for the benefit of readers who missed my articles a few months ago. Briefly, the game of Bolivia adds a canasta of seven wild cards to the familiar game of samba.

Use three regular packs (52 cards each) and six jokers. There are 162 cards in all. These include 18 wild cards, 6 red threes, and 6 black threes.

Each player is dealt 15 cards. The next card is turned up. If the upcard is a wild card or a three (red or black) it must be covered.

When you draw from the stock, you take two cards. You discard only one card at each turn. Hence your hand tends to grow bigger as the play goes on.

There are four kinds of canasta:

1. Mixed canasta—one or two wild cards (never more than two) with natural cards of the same rank to make a meld of seven cards or more. For example, you may meld six kings and a joker to make a mixed canasta. Once the canasta is completed you may not add wild cards (even if you have only one wild card in the canasta), but you may add natural cards.

2. Pure canasta—seven or more cards of the same rank. Example, seven or more aces. The bonus is 500 points.

3. Samba (also called sequence canasta, or escalera)—seven cards of the same suit in sequence (never more than seven cards). For example, you may have A-K-Q-J-10-9-8 of spades (or of any other suit). In any sequence, the ace is the highest possible card; the four is the lowest possible card. The bonus is 1500 points.

4. Bolivia—exactly seven wild cards. The bonus is 2500 points.

You need two canastas (of any kind at all) to get credit for your red threes. If the hand ends before your side has melded two canastas, your red threes count against you.

You need two canastas to meld out—but at least one of them must be a samba.

Game is 15,000 points. The initial meld is 120 points from a score of 3000 to 6995. After you have 7,000 points you need an initial meld of 150 points.

You lose 100 points for each black three in your hand when the deal comes to an end.

Save this column to settle arguments when you play Bolivia. More discussion of this game in next week's column.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Jacoby on Canasta

Bolivia Is Full of Fun

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

I've received a large number of questions about the new game of Bolivia, so its time to review the way this game is played for the benefit of readers who missed my articles a few months ago. Briefly, the game of Bolivia adds a canasta of seven wild cards to the familiar game of samba.

Use three regular packs (52 cards each) and six jokers. There are 162 cards in all. These include 18 wild cards, 6 red threes, and 6 black threes.

Each player is dealt 15 cards. The next card is turned up. If the upcard is a wild card or a three (red or black) it must be covered.

When you draw from the stock, you take two cards. You discard only one card at each turn. Hence your hand tends to grow bigger as the play goes on.

There are four kinds of canasta:

1. Mixed canasta—one or two wild cards (never more than two) with natural cards of the same rank to make a meld of seven cards or more. For example, you may meld six kings and a joker to make a mixed canasta. Once the canasta is completed you may not add wild cards (even if you have only one wild card in the canasta), but you may add natural cards.

2. Pure canasta—seven or more cards of the same rank. Example, seven or more aces. The bonus is 500 points.

3. Samba (also called sequence canasta, or escalera)—seven cards of the same suit in sequence (never more than seven cards). For example, you may have A-K-Q-J-10-9-8 of spades (or of any other suit). In any sequence, the ace is the highest possible card; the four is the lowest possible card. The bonus is 1500 points.

4. Bolivia—exactly seven wild cards. The bonus is 2500 points.

You need two canastas (of any kind at all) to get credit for your red threes. If the hand ends before your side has melded two canastas, your red threes count against you.

You need two canastas to meld out—but at least one of them must be a samba.

Game is 15,000 points. The initial meld is 120 points from a score of 3000 to 6995. After you have 7,000 points you need an initial meld of 150 points.

You lose 100 points for each black three in your hand when the deal comes to an end.

Save this column to settle arguments when you play Bolivia. More discussion of this game in next week's column.

Mr. Jacoby is unable to answer individual questions on Canasta from readers. However, he will include the most frequently asked questions in his column.

Dinner Club Names World Traveler as First Guest Speaker

The Kingston National Dinner Club will begin its ninth season Tuesday, Nov. 17, with Robert Christopher, young world traveler, as guest speaker, as announced by Warren Smith, secretary of the organization.

Mr. Christopher will tell a story of a trip in adventure when he went Around the World on $80. He started out from New York, traveled through 17 foreign lands, in 84 days. Still in his 20's, Bob Christopher is more widely traveled than men twice his age. He has visited 65 countries on six continents, getting an early start on his travel career, when he hitchhiked from his native Chicago to New York's World Fair when he was 14 years of age. The next year he took a 12,000 mile trip through the United States, Mexico and Canada on less than $50.

"Everyone will find his talk of interest," avers the secretary, "since it has appeal to those who have traveled abroad and those who would like to." In either case, his economical adventures with all types of people in many lands will stir the imagination, it was said.

As in past years, the speakers for the year were chosen directly by the members of the Dinner Club by special ballot, insuring approval on all speakers, in April.

The Dinner Club membership is open to everyone who is interested in hearing a worthwhile speaker on a topic of current national or international interest, and the club invites new memberships. For further information, contact Warren Smith, 95 John street, telephone 1819.

It is notable that the Dinner Club here has been used as a guinea pig in many cases, to determine the worth of speakers. Upon the reports submitted by the audiences here, the Club's Service evaluated the speakers, many of them jumping to a higher bracket as a direct result of the favorable report given at the dinner. The Club's Service has come to depend upon the discriminating taste of the Dinner Club members as evidenced by their reactions.

Officers of the Kingston National Dinner Club are headed by Major Thomas J. Hanlon, president; Clyde F. Gardner, vice-president; Warren F. Smith, secretary; and Ray A. White, treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are Mrs. Millard Davis, Miss Alice E. Toole, Mrs. Ashton H. Hart, James H. Betts and DeWeese W. DeWitt.

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ryan, Jr.

The bride wore a wine-colored ensemble with wine and white accessories and a squirrel stole. Her corsage was of white cynbidiums.

A reception and dinner at Leherb's followed immediately after the ceremony.

enforcement" of state laws against discrimination. He also charged a "flagrant" violation of laws relating to the control of migrant farm labor in the state.

Hill, a former national staff member of the United Steel Workers of America, CIO, termed the civil rights issue a major national problem in the United States today, both in the country's domestic affairs and in its relations with the rest of the world.

The status and treatment of 15 million Negro citizens in the United States "has assumed a greater significance today than in any period since the end of reconstruction days," he said. "Our colored citizens are still second class citizens," he said, referring to the "Jim Crow conditions in the South." The situation detracts from what the State Department says about freedom and liberty in foreign policy messages, he contended.

Stating that he believed the Ives-Quinn law against discrimination is a good law, and that the NAACP fought for its adoption, Hill stated that he nevertheless has "found it necessary to be extremely critical of the weak and ineffective enforcement of the state law against discrimination."

He cited the Dorothy Brown case at Elmont, which he handled for the NAACP. Miss Brown, he said, was a qualified Negro teacher refused employment, and that after the case was presented to the State Commission Against Discrimination the board issued a determination stating that there was no instance of discrimination and "not even a probable cause for filing a complaint," Hill reported.

The case subsequently was carried to the State Supreme Court, which "fully vindicated the position of the NAACP," Hill contended.

"It is important to note the extreme reluctance of the commissioners to use the subpoena powers and court enforcement orders as provided in the legislative enactment," Hill said.

Speaking of his investigation of migrant labor camps in the state, Hill said the study revealed "indescribable horrors of filthy, inhuman conditions and a widespread violation of the state labor law and violations of the child labor act and of housing and sanitary codes."

He charged: "The farmers of New York state have a great contempt for law relating to farm labor, and at the present time there is a tacit collusion between the food processing industry. The Attorney General's office, which is the chief law enforcement agency in the state, has been particularly derelict in the enforcement of various statutes relating to migrant farm labor."

In introducing Hill, the past state president, James E. Allen, stressed his fearless approach in spreading the aims and purposes of the NAACP, and he urged cooperation and support of the movement by all classes, said, "We are all brothers in one vineyard or another.

"When we realize the oneness of man, we realize we are approaching the aims of this great organization we love so well," said Allen.

Mrs. Miriam Van Derzee, secretary of the Ulster county branch, was toastmistress. Invocation was given by the Rev. Walter Washington of River View Baptist Church. Mrs. Ernest Canine sang two solos. President Hodge welcomed the gathering on behalf of the local unit, and among those introduced were Nathan Armstrong, first president of the local branch; and Alderman-at-Large Joseph Kelly, who delivered the official welcome for the city.

Mrs. Gordon, the state president, stressed the need for keeping up the "pressure in every direction" to keep constant the gains already made in the political, educational and economic fields.

"Our great bulwark of strength, the foundation upon which our progress is based, lies in the Constitution of our great country," she said. "The NAACP has done an outstanding job in helping to clarify the rights of all citizens under the Constitution, and we shall continue our efforts to make even clearer the very fundamentals of democracy. At the same time we shall keep it clearly and unmistakably understood that we shall work as good Americans to achieve our goals."

Mrs. Gordon pledged, "We shall keep our organization free from Communist infiltration and make it clearly understood that we need neither Communists nor any other subversive influence to help us do our job."

Terming the Negro in America "a very important ingredient in the loaf of democracy," Mrs. Gordon said that, in fact, the Negro may be "the very leaven in that loaf, since the downtrodden and underprivileged millions throughout the world are focusing their sights upon our great American minority as the measure of global progress toward freedom . . . Let us, therefore, carry forward our fight with a renewed sense of importance and dignity . . . striving to achieve a very real democracy and to build a greater America."

SAYING 'YES, SIR'

A wife writes: "Of late my husband has adopted the practice of saying 'Yes Sir' and 'No Sir' when speaking toother men. While I am not snobbish in the least, I feel that this 'Sir' business suggests subservence. My husband says that the men in his office, executives as well as employes, address their business contacts this way. When a man is very elderly or revered, I can understand it, but not otherwise. Am I wrong?"

I agree with you. If that happens to be the custom in his office, that's one thing—but under ordinary circumstances outside the office, it would be ridiculous unless addressing a much older or especially distinguished person.

Clothes for Breakfas

Dear Mrs. Post: When spending the weekend in someone's house, is it proper to come to the breakfast table in a housecoat, or must one be fully dressed in street clothes? I am going to spend the weekend with my college roommate and her family and want to be sure to do the right thing as they are socially prominent people and I don't want them to think me ignorant.

Answer: To wear a dress couldn't be wrong and the housecoat might very well be.

Evening Reception

Dear Mrs. Post: At the president's evening reception for new students, held in one of the college buildings not the president's house, should his wife and members of the faculty who will receive with them, wear hats when afternoon dresses are being worn?

Answer: Evening, no; daytime, yes.

Christening Dress

Dear Mrs. Post: My son, who is one month old, will be christened this coming week. I had my heart set on his wearing a long white christening dress but have been told that a dress is not correct for a boy and that he should be dressed in a white silk suit or romper. Will you please advise me about this?

Answer: A baby one month old—whether boy or girl—certainly wears a long christening dress.

Miss Mildred White Of Schenectady Weds Edward F. Mains, Jr.

The wedding of Miss Mildred Arlene White, daughter of Ralph White of 1034 Wallace avenue, Schenectady, and the late Mrs. White, and Edward Frederick Mains, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Mains of Port Ewen, took place Saturday, Oct. 3 in Schenectady at the Trinity Reformed Church. The Rev. Charles Wagner, pastor of this church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The organist for the ceremony was Stan Wilman. The church was decorated with white chrysanthemums and gladioli.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a waltz length gown of ice blue Chantilly lace over matching satin fashioned with a Peter Pan collar with insets of sequins. Her shoulder length veil was secured to a nylon tulle and velvet cap. She carried a white orchid and lily of the valley bouquet.

Mrs. Patricia P. Schoenberger of Schenectady was the honor attendant. She wore a waltz length gown of wedgewood blue with tiered full skirt of nylon tulle and a jacket of Chantilly lace with a cap of matching blue velvet. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums.

Clark Mains, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man.

Richard Mains of Port Ewen, brother of the bridegroom, and Donald Schoenberger of Schenectady served as ushers.

A dinner for the wedding party and immediate family was held following the ceremony at the Turnpike, Albany.

For the wedding journey to the southern states, and Florida, the bride chose a powder blue suit with black accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The bride, a graduate of Draper High School, Schenectady, is employed as a librarian at the General Electric Company, General Engineering Laboratory.

The bridegroom, a graduate of Kingston High School, and General Electric's TCLA course, is now employed in their General Engineering Laboratory.

The couple plan to make their home in Schenectady.

Dinner Club Names World Traveler as First Guest Speaker

The Kingston National Dinner Club will begin its ninth season Tuesday, Nov. 17, with Robert Christopher, young world traveler, as guest speaker, as announced by Warren Smith, secretary of the organization.

Mr. Christopher will tell a story of a trip in adventure when he went Around the World on $80. He started out from New York, traveled through 17 foreign lands, in 84 days. Still in his 20's, Bob Christopher is more widely traveled than men twice his age. He has visited 65 countries on six continents, getting an early start on his travel career, when he hitchhiked from his native Chicago to New York's World Fair when he was 14 years of age. The next year he took a 12,000 mile trip through the United States, Mexico and Canada on less than $50.

"Everyone will find his talk of interest," avers the secretary, "since it has appeal to those who have traveled abroad and those who would like to." In either case, his economical adventures with all types of people in many lands will stir the imagination, it was said.

As in past years, the speakers for the year were chosen directly by the members of the Dinner Club by special ballot, insuring approval on all speakers, in April.

The Dinner Club membership is open to everyone who is interested in hearing a worthwhile speaker on a topic of current national or international interest, and the club invites new memberships. For further information, contact Warren Smith, 95 John street, telephone 1819.

It is notable that the Dinner Club here has been used as a guinea pig in many cases, to determine the worth of speakers. Upon the reports submitted by the audiences here, the Club's Service evaluated the speakers, many of them jumping to a higher bracket as a direct result of the favorable report given at the dinner. The Club's Service has come to depend upon the discriminating taste of the Dinner Club members as evidenced by their reactions.

Officers of the Kingston National Dinner Club are headed by Major Thomas J. Hanlon, president; Clyde F. Gardner, vice-president; Warren F. Smith, secretary; and Ray A. White, treasurer.

Members of the board of directors are Mrs. Millard Davis, Miss Alice E. Toole, Mrs. Ashton H. Hart, James H. Betts and DeWeese W. DeWitt.

Mrs. Olive Sturgeon Weds Ernest J. Ryan

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Ryan, Jr.

The bride wore a wine-colored ensemble with wine and white accessories and a squirrel stole. Her corsage was of white cynbidiums.

A reception and dinner at Leherb's followed immediately after the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryan left for a trip to Maine and Canada. They plan to make their home at 38 Josephine avenue.

Today's hand was played some years ago in a team match. At one table the East-West pair bid and made seven hearts, and they congratulated themselves on making a plus score of 2210 points, as well they might. If North had led a spade, the grand slam would have been defeated, so the East-West pair expected to wind up with a profit when the hand was played at the other table.

They actually wound up with a loss—of 2390 points. One of their teammates played the hand in the remarkable contract of two spades redoubled. He had failed to take a trick and the loss at his table was 4600 points.

How do you get yourself into a jam of this kind? One way is to have your signals go wrong, and another way is to have far more confidence in your partner than he can possibly deserve.

South's bid of two spades was intended to demand a takeout in one of the minor suits. South thought that the opponents could do well in the majors, and he hoped to steal the hand from them for a trifling loss.

The idea was reasonable enough despite the weakness of the South hand, for South could have made six tricks at clubs.

When West doubled and North failed to take out, South should have run to three clubs to make his intentions quite clear. The redouble should have had the same effect on a good partner, but few partners can be trusted in so dangerous a situation.

The actual North player decided that South meant the spade bid and that one of the opponents was trying to get away with a psychic bid.

West took the first three tricks with top hearts and then led a fourth heart. South ruffed low in the dummy, not knowing where any of the top spades were, and East over-ruffed with the six of spades. East returned the ace and then the ten of clubs, West ruffing out declarer's king of clubs.

West tried a low diamond next, East winning with the ace. East cashed the jack of clubs and led a diamond to his partner's king. By this time all hands were reduced to four cards, and West led his last heart.

South desperately ruffed with dummy's nine, and East over-ruffed with the ten. Thereupon West boldly claimed the last three tricks with the ace, king and queen of trumps.

Temple Emanuel Plans Attendance Project

A temple attendance project will be launched by Temple Emanuel during November and continue throughout the year.

The kick-off of the drive will coincide with Religion in American Life, a nation-wide non-sectarian campaign to urge all Americans to attend the church or synagogue of their choice. The theme of the campaign, which will be supported by a $5,000,000 advertising program, will be Light Their Life With Faith—Bring Them to Worship This Week. It will be directed to the children as the leverage to bring their parents to develop in their children the habit of regular attendance as a means of giving security, hope and balance to their lives.

A committee headed by Edwin Wetterhahn has been appointed to contact all members of the congregation to request them to attend worship services regularly. The slogan of the drive is Fill the Temple This Week. An interesting schedule of services has been arranged.

Kerhonkson High News in Brief

Club Aids Students

The Commerce Club at Kerhonkson High School is taking over the affairs of the old K-X or Kerhonkson Exchange. The original setup was a terminal project of Mr. Ostrander's Business Management class and served to demonstrate the practical application of business organization as related to purchase, inventory control and salesmanship, sales promotion. The members of the group actually stocked the Commerce Room with stationery supplies, purchased with an original grant of $35 from Student Council, and proceeded to sell the merchandise to the student body.

Because of the success of the original undertaking, and because Business Management is not offered this year, the group carries on as the Commerce Club—but continues to provide real experience in the various phases of business while also supplying materials conveniently and at a price saving to the students of Kerhonkson. The profits are pigeon-holed for the actual physical improvement of the Commerce Department.

P-TA Features Open House

The parents of students attending the Kerhonkson Public Schools will substitute for their children at 7:30 Wednesday, Nov. 4. The P-TA has arranged for a complete run-down of the day's activities in miniature so that the parents and citizens of the school's community may visity each child's classes. The various teachers will present, in 10 minute sessions, the aims of the courses, some methods of introducing the subject, exhibit the texts and work of the students in class.

These periods will enable all parents interested in their children's welfare and school work to get a direct view of school conditions, each child's progress and to have answered any questions which they may have been thinking about concerning the school and the child.

When the shortened day has been completed, all parents will convene in the Kerhonkson High School auditorium to hear a summary of other events being carried on in the school and to provide time to clear up any problems or questions which may have arisen. Each parent will be presented with a copy of the school newspaper, The Flying Goose, and refreshments will be served. It will prove a profitable evening for all parents and for all members of the community who are curious about the workings of the school system.

BRANDING FOR SAFETY—Special license plates, to brand dangerous drivers is Martha Berglund's idea of reducing traffic fatalities. State Campsites Enjoyed Boom In 1953 Season

Albany—Proof of the increasing popularity, among out-of-door enthusiasts, of the New York State Conservation Department's public campsites was seen today in Commissioner Perry B. Duryea's release of the 1943 summer attendance figures.

Over a million people visited the campsites, the majority to enjoy camping privileges. Together they spent 1,657,933 man days at the campsites, an increase of 8.7 per cent over the 1952 figure for an all time high in public use.

Commissioner Duryea also reported that while the public campsites set the pace in public appeal during the past summer, other outdoor recreation facilities administered by the department's Bureau of Camps and Trails reflected the same trend.

Quoting from the Department's attendance figures, the Commissioner revealed that Lake George beach enjoyed another banner season, with locker rentals up 22.6% over 1952, Crown Point Reservation up 27.8 per cent in man days use over 1952; John Boyd Thatcher Park played host to 256,750 visitors, an increase of 7.5 per cent over 1952; while Belleayre Mountain Ski Center proved its year-round popularity with a 29 per cent increase in summer visitors.

Sawkill

The sixth Folklore meeting was held Tuesday night at the Thendara Farm, home of the Sawkill Home Bureau Unit's Folklore leader, Miss Marie Siemsen, and town historian, Harry Siemsen. Mrs. M. Kay, unit chairman opened the meeting which was then presided over by Siemsen. Various topics of folflore and history were discussed by the group present, including accounts of various roads originally in this area. It also was of great interest to newcomers to the community to learn that originally the Town of Kingston encompassed parts of the present city of Kingston, as well as parts of a number of bordering townships. Ghost stories, and tall tales injected the humorous part of the evening. There was also on display a number of photographs taken by the town historian of interesting scenes, and activities in the community. Of particular interest was a series of photographs of the Sawkill Fire Company, from the first fund raising affair, through various phases of the construction of the fire house, etc. Refreshments were served. Among the guests present was Miss Everice Parsons, Ulster County home demonstration agent.

Birthdays being celebrated this month include those of Mrs. Y. Saphir, Oct. 18; Lemuel Peter Boise, Oct. 24; Edward Winchell, Oct. 26; John Herbert, Oct. 22; Donna Diedzic, Oct. 27.

As Pegler Sees It

armloads of actual ball-bats and clubs.

Many of the longshoremen are loyal to their old union, if not to Ryan, personally, who, incidentally, has some loyal followers in spite of his bad publicity. Beck's reputation offers these men no assurance of anything better and nobody invited him to "clean up the New York waterfront." He hasn't cleaned up his own teamsters' and the wild criminal reign in the Kansas City area by Beck's local subordinates, now under indictment, augers even worse conditions of the waterfront should Beck take over.

The other convicted criminal who got a cash gift as reported in the El Paso Herald-Post on Aug. 21, is Joe Campos, recording secretary of Bayard, N. M., Local of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, formerly CIO but now independent. Campos was convicted of rape and sent to prison at Santa Fe. It was not represented that he incurred this penalty in the performance of any official duty. A committee of two brothers was delegated to deliver the $50 to brother Compos by hand. The directing genius of this union is Nathan Witt, one of Felix Frankfurter's proteges, who was planted in the National Labor Relations Board when it was first constituted. Lee Pressman, another Communist protege of the Frankfurter network, testified that Witt was a Communist.

Paul Hall, of the Seamen's International, maintains a hiring hall for thugs for riot duty in the hire of other unions.

Beck's publicity also revealed a new design to create an intricate network of personal espionage all over the United States through the agency of members of the Teamsters' Union who deliver milk, laundry, groceries and other household stuff. It was given out that Beck mailed to locals in 13 states a folder containing the missing Greenlease child's picture and a description of the woman who had snatched him, with instructions to drivers to spy on their customers noting "any suspicious increase" in milk consumption and to hackmen to scrutinize their fares. The menace of such a system of spies to unsuspecting citizens need not be spelled out, although many drivers of course would not obey. There was no mention whatever in the union's publicity of the facts that the man who got the $1,000 actually got it for disclosures incidental to a criminal act condemned by all decent men nor of his previous criminal record which, in many jurisdictions, would disqualify him for a license to drive a car.

Kingston High Edges Valley Stream, 7-6, for Fifth Straight

Gene Massa's Placement Decides Sluggish Duel

Thanks to Gene Massa's trusty toe, Kingston High preserved its unbeaten skein with a 7-6 squeaker over a rugged Valley Stream eleven Saturday at Long Island.

In the process of racking up their fifth straight victory of the campaign, the Maroons rid themselves of some pretty bad football. They played their worst game of the season, but it couldn't happen at a more opportune time.

Coach Bill Burke's charges might have been lulled into a sense of false security by Valley Stream's undistinguished record of no victories. But the Islanders proved to be a big, tough combine that gave the sluggish Maroon conniptions until Massa decided the issue with his fifth straight placement in the last two games.

Against Middletown High he had kicked four in a row.

Idle Until Nov. 7

The Maroons will be idle next Saturday, before resuming operations on Nov. 7 against Lawrence High, reputed to be the roughest squad on Long Island.

Although the offense was inept, the Kingston line played another great game. Valley Stream moved ahead 6-0 in the second quarter on a 40-yard end sweep by halfback Joe Bartone but that was the sum total of their offense threats. The Kingston forwards smashed through to smother the try for extra point and proved to be vital play. Bartone's scamper came on a fourth and two situation.

Kingston retaliated in the third period when Roger Billings hit John Turck from the Valley Stream 20 for the equalizer on a fourth and six setup.

Turck caught the ball about a yard from the goal and stepped over untouched. Massa then delivered the important extra point.

March 59 Yards

The TD trek consumed 59 yards as Billings hit Turck with three passes, including the payoff. The first carried from the Kingston 45 to the VS 45. Johnson scampered to the 35 on a handoff and Billings hit Turck on the 24. Souers and Johnson combined to the 20 to set the stage for the touchdown pass.

Two bad breaks robbed Kingston of a chance to swell its total. Johnny Turck was out in the clear all by himself when he dropped a third period pass from Massa on the VS 25. Charlie Johnson intercepted a VS pass in the fourth period and apparently went all the way for a TD. But the officials ruled that he had stepped out of bounds around the VS 35.

The ball handling was poor in the first half with Kingston losing the ball three times on fumbles but VS was not able to capitalize.

Coach John Gilligan's gridders reached the Port 11 in the third period for their deepest penetration of the day. Bob Smith was outstanding in the running department and shared defensive honors with Pete Blanschan.

Yale Leads Ivy League

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Ivy League championship remained very much up in the air and probably will depend on the results of two traditional games—Cornell-Penn on Nov. 26 and Princeton-Yale on Nov. 14.

Yale now has undisputed possession of the top rung with two victories and no defeats. The Elis figure to get past Dartmouth and Harvard, but Princeton will present a problem.

Cornell, which is entertaining hopes of winning the championship, is the one unfortunate member of the league that meets Penn. The Quakers, although they are in the loop, play only one game against league foes this year—Cornell.

Even Princeton still can win it. The Tigers, whipped by Cornell 26-19 Saturday, still have four league opponents on their slate. If they win them all and Penn beats Cornell, they're in.

The main thorn in the side of Charlie Caldwell's lads was halfback Dick Jackson, who scored two fourth-period touchdowns, the first one on a 60-yard sprint. On the second, he grabbed a pass from Bill DeGraaf and raced 61 yards for the score.

In the only other league game Saturday, Harvard defeated Dartmouth 20-14 in the 50th anniversary of the dedication of Harvard's stadium. Dick Clasby passed to the deciding touchdown, and, although he did not score himself, kept the Dartmouth defense on edge all afternoon.

Penn upset Navy 9-7; Army whipped Columbia 40-7; Yale tied Colgate 7-7 and Brown edged Holy Cross 6-0, in non-league games.

Lopat Team Wins

Sendai, Japan, Oct. 26 (AP)—Ed Lopat's U. S. major league All-Stars today shut out a team from Japan's professional Pacific League, 3-0, in this northern Japan city. Curt Simmons of the Phillies pitched a five hitter for the All-Stars, who have won three of four games in Japan.

Mountaineers Score on Last Play of Game

Move 85 Yards on Two Last Minute Passes

Tannersville High moved 85 yards on passes on the last two plays of the game to tie the KHS Jayvees, 13-13, in a Saturday thriller at the mountain town.

Halfback Joe Vanucci and end Joe Chamato combined for the two completions that moved from the Tannersville 15 to paydirt.

The try for extra point that would have brought victory to Tannersville actually was tried after time had run out. It went wide of the uprights.

From the 15 Vanucci first hit Chamato on a play that carried to the Tannersville 40 and followed with a 60-yard scoring toss with only seconds remaining.

Quarterback Kenny Osterhoudt rammed over from two yards out to climax a 60-yard march that sent Kingston ahead 6-0 in the first period. He bulled over for the extra point to make it 7-0.

Tannersville recovered a Kingston fumble on the local 30 and two plays later Vanucci streaked 25 yards up the middle. Kebabjian's placement tied the score 7-7 where it stayed until the end of the half.

Maroons March 70

Coach Bill Hurley's gridders took the second half kickoff and marched from their own 30 to the Tannersville goal line, Neil Keyser smashing over from the five. The try for extra point failed.

That made it 13-7 and it appeared to be enough until Vanucci and Chamato combined for their last minute heroics.

Keyser was Kingston's outstanding back, reeling off several long runs. The line as a whole played a good defensive game but Tannersville was able to probe the Maroon's backfield weakness for the crucial passes in the stretch.

Notre Dame Rout of Tech Keeps Irish in No. 1 Spot

Navy, Michigan State Toppled First Time

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—The 1953 college football season, you might say, will start next Saturday for just about every top team in the country except Notre Dame.

Frank Leahy's legions today stood head and shoulders over the pack and if they don't crush Navy just as they've beaten down all their opposition so far the experts will be jumping off high buildings in droves.

At the moment, the longest winning streak among the major schools is a modest 11 compiled by West Virginia, which won six last year and has five more this season.

For Georgia Tech, which fell before the Notre Dame powerhouse, and Michigan State, which dropped a 6-0 decision to Purdue, their dream worlds have disappeared. Now they're back in reality.

The Engineers had run up a string of 31 games without a defeat, although they were tied twice, before Johnny Lattner and Co. slugged them 27-14 last Saturday. This was no upset. The Irish were favored by 7½ points, but the experts figured that Georgia Tech had about as good a chance as anyone of stopping them.

But, just as Coach Bobby Dodd thought, Notre Dame tore the relatively light Tech line to shreds. Neil Worden bulled over for one score, Ralph Guglielmi passed Joe Heap for another, Art Hunter fell on a bad pass from center in the end zone for No. 3 and Lattner made the fourth from two yards out.

Spartans Lose Shocker

Michigan State had won 28 in a row before getting its comeuppance from Purdue. All streaks have to go eventually, and no one knew better than Coach Biggie Munn that things couldn't go on forever. But it's doubtful if he entertained any thoughts of being beaten by a team that had dropped four games without getting in the win column.

Purdue, which snapped a 39-game Notre Dame string in 1950, effectively bottled up the Spartan array of great backs and made the only touchdown on a 55-yard drive that took 10 plays, Dan Pobejewski, former Michigan State student, crashed over from the one.

The Big 10 race is now scrambled like breakfast eggs. Michigan, which was supposed to give State a run for its money, was upset by Minnesota, 22-0 when All-America Paul Giel finally decided to take complete charge by himself. He scored twice and passed for the other Gopher touchdown in handling the ball 53 times.

That left Illinois, which beat Syracuse 20-13, in undisputed possession of first place in the loop.

Navy Stunned

Navy perhaps was spending its time on Franklin Field looking ahead to the Notre Dame game. At any rate, Penn, the Ivy League outfit with the suicidal schedule, beat the Middies, ranked No. 10 in the weekly Associated Press poll, 9-6, in another major upset.

West Virginia, after slugging Virginia Military Institute 52-20 seems to have clear sailing the rest of the way. Penn State is its next and probably strongest opponent.

The picture is completely confused right below Notre Dame. Oklahoma, which got off to a poor start, seems to be snapping back in stride and knocked off Colorado 27-20 Saturday.

Another strong outfit is Baylor, which took care of Texas A. and M. 14-13. The Bruins still are unbeaten and rule the choice to win the Southwest Conference title. But they have four league foes to play and anything can happen.

On the Pacific coast, UCLA, despite an upset at the hands of Stanford a week ago, could take the conference title. The Uclans warmed up to the California game Saturday by slaughtering Washington State, 44-7. Southern Cal. took a lot of the wind out of California by beating the Golden Bears 32-20.

In the south, it is Maryland all the way. The Terps had a day off Saturday after overcoming Miami (Fla.) Friday. They're next opponent is South Carolina.

Irish Cried Like Babes When Leahy Was Stricken but Still Could See Goal Line

Chicago, Oct. 26 (AP)—That was quite a stomach ache Frank Leahy had Saturday.

Variously diagnosed as a heart attack, a "muscle spasm," intestinal flu and "acute enteritis," it became—because of its timing—even more celebrated than his Notre Dame football team's 27-14 victory over Georgia Tech.

Anyway, it was one of the most successful of its kind in history.

It occurred at halftime and turned the Irish football team into a sobbing crew of crusaders determined to "win for Leahy."

That they did is history. Apparently feeling the lack of Leahy's firm leadership, they let a 7-0 lead slip away but then, mixing tears and prayers with power, they swamped the Engineers with a dedicated closing attack.

The victory of Georgia Tech, rated fourth in the nation, all but guaranteed the Irish at least another week at the top of the Associated Press poll. Contending Michigan State, ranking No. 2 last week, was expected to slip a little after its 6-0 upset by Purdue.

Leahy complained of pain as his team was trooping into the Notre Dame dressing room at the end of the first half. The attack was at first thought to be a heart seizure and he was given oxygen, the last sacraments of the Catholic Church and a swift trip by ambulance to the hospital.

Cried Like Babies

"They all cried like babies," said assistant coach Bill Earley.

Throughout the rest of the game, Georgia Tech players noted that Notre Dame men kept wiping tears from their eyes.

But, as one observer later pointed out, "it didn't stop them from seeing the goal line." Earley summed up:

"They played the hardest ball I've seen them play this season. They won—they won for Leahy."

The Irish coach was reported clamoring to get out of the hospital as early as Saturday night but doctors scheduled further precautionary tests for this morning before giving him any word on when he could leave.

Ed (Moose) Krause, Notre Dame's athletic director and Leahy's good friend, said he expected Leahy to be back on the coaching line later this week.

From the 15 Vanucci first hit Chamato on a play that carried to the Tannersville 40 and followed with a 60-yard scoring toss with only seconds remaining.

Quarterback Kenny Osterhoudt rammed over from two yards out to climax a 60-yard march that sent Kingston ahead 6-0 in the first period. He bulled over for the extra point to make it 7-0.

Tannersville recovered a Kingston fumble on the local 30 and two plays later Vanucci streaked 25 yards up the middle. Kebabjian's placement tied the score 7-7 where it stayed until the end of the half.

Maroons March 70

Coach Bill Hurley's gridders took the second half kickoff and marched from their own 30 to the Tannersville goal line, Neil Keyser smashing over from the five. The try for extra point failed.

That made it 13-7 and it appeared to be enough until Vanucci and Chamato combined for their last minute heroics.

Keyser was Kingston's outstanding back, reeling off several long runs. The line as a whole played a good defensive game but Tannersville was able to probe the Maroon's backfield weakness for the crucial passes in the stretch.

The lineups:

KHS Jayvees		Tannersville

Notre Dame Rout of Tech Keeps Irish in No. 1 Spot

Navy, Michigan State Toppled First Time

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—The 1953 college football season, you might say, will start next Saturday for just about every top team in the country except Notre Dame.

Frank Leahy's legions today stood head and shoulders over the pack and if they don't crush Navy just as they've beaten down all their opposition so far the experts will be jumping off high buildings in droves.

At the moment, the longest winning streak among the major schools is a modest 11 compiled by West Virginia, which won six last year and has five more this season.

For Georgia Tech, which fell before the Notre Dame powerhouse, and Michigan State, which dropped a 6-0 decision to Purdue, their dream worlds have disappeared. Now they're back in reality.

The Engineers had run up a string of 31 games without a defeat, although they were tied twice, before Johnny Lattner and Co. slugged them 27-14 last Saturday. This was no upset. The Irish were favored by 7½ points, but the experts figured that Georgia Tech had about as good a chance as anyone of stopping them.

But, just as Coach Bobby Dodd thought, Notre Dame tore the relatively light Tech line to shreds. Neil Worden bulled over for one score, Ralph Guglielmi passed Joe Heap for another, Art Hunter fell on a bad pass from center in the end zone for No. 3 and Lattner made the fourth from two yards out.

Spartans Lose Shocker

Michigan State had won 28 in a row before getting its comeuppance from Purdue. All streaks have to go eventually, and no one knew better than Coach Biggie Munn that things couldn't go on forever. But it's doubtful if he entertained any thoughts of being beaten by a team that had dropped four games without getting in the win column.

Purdue, which snapped a 39-game Notre Dame string in 1950, effectively bottled up the Spartan array of great backs and made the only touchdown on a 55-yard drive that took 10 plays, Dan Pobejewski, former Michigan State student, crashed over from the one.

The Big 10 race is now scrambled like breakfast eggs. Michigan, which was supposed to give State a run for its money, was upset by Minnesota, 22-0 when All-America Paul Giel finally decided to take complete charge by himself. He scored twice and passed for the other Gopher touchdown in handling the ball 53 times.

That left Illinois, which beat Syracuse 20-13, in undisputed possession of first place in the loop.

Navy Stunned

Navy perhaps was spending its time on Franklin Field looking ahead to the Notre Dame game. At any rate, Penn, the Ivy League outfit with the suicidal schedule, beat the Middies, ranked No. 10 in the weekly Associated Press poll, 9-6, in another major upset.

West Virginia, after slugging Virginia Military Institute 52-20 seems to have clear sailing the rest of the way. Penn State is its next and probably strongest opponent.

The picture is completely confused right below Notre Dame. Oklahoma, which got off to a poor start, seems to be snapping back in stride and knocked off Colorado 27-20 Saturday.

Another strong outfit is Baylor, which took care of Texas A. and M. 14-13. The Bruins still are unbeaten and rule the choice to win the Southwest Conference title. But they have four league foes to play and anything can happen.

On the Pacific coast, UCLA, despite an upset at the hands of Stanford a week ago, could take the conference title. The Uclans warmed up to the California game Saturday by slaughtering Washington State, 44-7. Southern Cal. took a lot of the wind out of California by beating the Golden Bears 32-20.

In the south, it is Maryland all the way. The Terps had a day off Saturday after overcoming Miami (Fla.) Friday. They're next opponent is South Carolina.

Irish Cried Like Babes When Leahy Was Stricken but Still Could See Goal Line

Chicago, Oct. 26 (AP)—That was quite a stomach ache Frank Leahy had Saturday.

Variously diagnosed as a heart attack, a "muscle spasm," intestinal flu and "acute enteritis," it became—because of its timing—even more celebrated than his Notre Dame football team's 27-14 victory over Georgia Tech.

Attendants at St. Joseph's Hospital in nearby South Bend, Ind., were going along with the "acute enteritis" theory today. One of them described it as "nothing more than a high class stomach ache."

Anyway, it was one of the most successful of its kind in history.

It occurred at halftime and turned the Irish football team into a sobbing crew of crusaders determined to "win for Leahy."

That they did is history. Apparently feeling the lack of Leahy's firm leadership, they let a 7-0 lead slip away but then, mixing tears and prayers with power, they swamped the Engineers with a dedicated closing attack.

The victory of Georgia Tech, rated fourth in the nation, all but guaranteed the Irish at least another week at the top of the Associated Press poll. Contending Michigan State, ranking No. 2 last week, was expected to slip a little after its 6-0 upset by Purdue.

Leahy complained of pain as his team was trooping into the Notre Dame dressing room at the end of the first half. The attack was at first thought to be a heart seizure and he was given oxygen, the last sacraments of the Catholic Church and a swift trip by ambulance to the hospital.

Cried Like Babies

Don Penza, Irish captain, was the only player to see him and, thinking his coach near death, blurted to his teammates the horrible implication.

"They all cried like babies," said assistant coach Bill Earley.

Throughout the rest of the game, Georgia Tech players noted that Notre Dame men kept wiping tears from their eyes.

But, as one observer later pointed out, "it didn't stop them from seeing the goal line." Earley summed up:

"They played the hardest ball I've seen them play this season. They won—they won for Leahy."

The Irish coach was reported clamoring to get out of the hospital as early as Saturday night but doctors scheduled further precautionary tests for this morning before giving him any word on when he could leave.

Ed (Moose) Krause, Notre Dame's athletic director and Leahy's good friend, said he expected Leahy to be back on the coaching line later this week.

Elston Sport Shop earned a 2-1 decision over Walden Lewis Saturday at the Bowlodrome, but Schryver Lumber drpped a pair at home to Liberty Toros and Jones Dairy lost a pair at Ellenville to the Nash in HVBL action.

George Shufeldt unloaded a 686 blast against the Toros at the Central Recs with solo slams of 231, 211 and 244 but the Lumberjacks were able to salvage only the middle set.

Owl Trouble

Raleigh, N. C. (AP)—R. T. Woody, a farmer of Leasburg, plans to "owl proof" his next chicken house. Woody heard a disturbance one night recently in his chicken house. Investigating, he found an owl perched on one of the beams. Woody obtained his rifle and took six potshots at the owl which had to be pried loose from his perch. In the commotion 318 chickens were smothered.

Hunters Get Bad News; Rainfall Is Not Enough

Albany, Oct. 26 (AP) — Hunters got bad news today—prediction of at least three more days of cool, dry weather in the state's closed woodlands.

A coastal storm that swept northward up the Hudson Valley yesterday only licked at the eastern Catskills and the southern edge of the Adirondacks. Except for scattered, light showers inland, the rain was confined to a narrow coastal area. The Weather Bureau said it would bring no change in fire hazards that spurred Gov. Dewey to close the forests.

The State Conservation Department said the rain did not cover a large enough area to justify lifting the ban and predicted at least three more days of drouth.

Three new forest fires reported yesterday were extinguished by nightfall. They brought the total for the past week to 89. In Rockland county, the light rain allowed rangers to leave their lookout towers for the first time in three months.

However, officials said the rain was so slight a high wind could dry the woods again in 12 hours.

The rain was reported to be too late to help farmers except possibly in the salvaging of a few late maturing vegetables.

• The Tenpin Trail:

Charlie Grunenwald's 743 series in the Hudson Valley Bowling League is the highest reported in the area this season. Larry Weishaupt has a 717 in the same circuit, but the most consistent high shooter to date in the city has been George Robinson, who has proved convincingly that the burden of detailing the statistics of the two major circuits has affected neither his enthusiasm nor his high scoring proclivities on the polished lanes. This could be the year for his "arrival" as high average leader in both loops.

• The Eleventh Frame:

The Kingston Bowling Association's constitutional revision committee did a splendid job and will present a sound document to the KBA directors for approval on Nov. 1. The election procedure has been clarified and an honest effort is made to bind convention delegates to the choices of their respective leagues. In the past, some league delegates have made a farce of the procedure by ignoring league pledges and acting on their own initiative. Incidentally, the KBA will have a new, permanent headquarters at 277 Fair street after having held sessions at the YMCA for several years. Thirty six teams competed in the national team match game elimination in Cleveland over the weekend but only squad was entered from the Eastern seaboard——James "Junie" McMahon's Ronson Lighters of New York. Besides McMahon the New Yorkers had Tony Sparando, Jack Horn, Slim Okular and Frank Santore, two-time ABC all-events kingpin.

Orchids for the past week in local bowling went to Jack O'Rourke for his sizzling 288 in the Electrol League. There is a thrill about 10 strikes in a row that is not quickly forgotten. The supreme sensation, of course, remains the 300 game which is one of the major achievements in the whole realm of sports. Marge Jansen's 555 and 535 indicated the veteran ace is about the zero the target around the 1-3 pocket. Year after year, she has been one of the most consistent pocket shooters in local bowling. Eleanor Singer posted a 232 solo and a big 558 to maintain her brisk early season pace. Here is a gal with the equipment to challenge anybody in the city. Nice to see Judy Lowe and Judy Broskie doing so well. These youngsters were the prize graduates of the Kingston Youth League which operated a few years ago. The big guy in that loop, Rudi Hohenberger, is holding his own with the oldies these days. Ann Apa, who is not ranked among the headliners yet, deserves a round of applause for her brilliant 218 in the Central Rec Mixer. T tip of the hat to Jackie Ferraro for his excellent pinning in the HVBL. Some observers think this is the year Jackie might lead his illustrious father.

• Of Men and Mice:

Reservation holders for the 1954 ABC tournament at Seattle, Washington, must confirm by Nov. 2. After that they may file the entry fees until Dec. 1. After that all entries will be thrown open on a first come, first served basis with the last day for filing, Feb. 2. Best possibilities for Kingston representation are the Schryver Lumber and Jones Dairy squads, but it's a long way to Seattle unless you travel by plane and that costs real money. A trip of that nature entails long range planning, several days off for men who work for a living and other factors. Still it would be nice to see a Kingston team on the west coast. Incidentally, Mr. Bowler, any member of the American Bowling Congress (and that means you) is entitled to submit proposals for changes in the ABC's Constitution, Rules and Regulations. Such proposals must be submitted in writing to the ABC Secretary's office, 1572 East Capitol Drive, Milwaukee, Wis. Detroit and Cleveland, two of the country's top bowling centers, welcomed the 1953-54 bowling season in a typical major league style. Each city declared a" Bowling Day" and conducted a parade through the heart of the town to celebrate the formal opening of the tenpin season.

This has nothing to do with bowling but the baseball fever which gripped Milwaukee all summer is still being felt there. The municipal zoo made an off-season trade.

Director George Speidel traded a surplus leopard and two rhesus monkeys, plus cash, to the Chase Hill Wild Animal Farm at Egypt, Mass., for a male cheetah and four wanderoo monkeys. The cash involved was said to be $1060.

McConnell And Jordan Pound 584

Weekend bowlers failed to register a "600" triple in four leagues, with 584s by Don McConnell and Tracy Jordan leading the pack.

Rita La Rocca of the Ferraro Mixer posted 163-156-208 for 527 for the best distaff score.

Jordan took down both marks in the Central Rec Mixer with 153-226-205 for 584. John Brady fired 232 and William Short 152-190-168 for 510 in the Electrol.

Bill Stenson's 242 in the Ferraro Mixer wa. the best solo blast of the weekend and Dick Waltman took down series honors in that wheel with 168-170-215-553.

Giardello Meets Cartier Tonight

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Joey (Reversible) Giardello, who won, lost and won in the same fight with Billy Graham a year ago, is a 2 to 1 favorite over New York's Walter Cartier tonight in a middleweight bout at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway.

The Philadelphia boxer never has lost at the Parkway where Cartier was stopped by Bobo Olson and split two decisions with Garth Panter. Giardello is the No. 5 contender in the division, now topped by Olson. The bout will be seen on TV (Dumont) some parts of the country.

George Araujo, a newlywed, will try to reverse a Sept. 10 upset by Teddy (Red Top) Davis when they meet Friday at Madison Square Garden. Araujo was favored to win the lightweight title the night he fought Jimmy Carter, but was stopped in the 13th round. Now he is No. 5 in the ring ratings The bout is the usual radio (ABC) and TV (NBC) Garden show.

Cleveland presents an international middleweight match, the third in the country within a week, when Rocky Castellani boxes France's Mickey Laurent Wednesday on TV (CBS). Castellani, third contender, has been moving up fast since he adopted Cleveland as his home.

Joey Giambra, the No. 6 middleweight from Buffalo, faces Jim (Red) Elby of Toledo in a co-featured ten on the Cleveland show that also includes three fights.

In 1843, a tunnel beneath the River Thames, in London, ' costing thousands of pounds and the lives of seven workmen to complete, was opened to the public. Designed for vehicles, it never served as anything more than an attraction for curious pedestrians.

Habers Cop 4th in Row In Y Loop

Haber's Grill combined a fast break with timely tapins by Dick Bezemer to rout Lincoln Park Inn, 99-52, for their fourth straight win Saturday in the "A" division of the Autumn League.

In the companion piece, Harry's Angels copped a defensive battle from Victory Bakery, 53-49, for their third win in four starts.

Bezemer unloaded 31 points and Skip Brodhead rimmed 28 but it was the all-around play of the team that put the crusher on the Lincolns, who trailed 15-24 at the quarter and 48-28 at halftime. Veteran Rod Sagendorf bucketed 24 for the losers.

East Leads Angels

Big Bill East's 18 points sparked Harry's Angels to their win over Victory Bakey after a close first half in which the Angels led 27-26. Vince Peck scored 14 for the Bakers.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By AL McCLANE
(Fishing Editor)

I have long been an opponent of using spinning tackle for big game fish.

There are a number of reasons why I feel that ultra light casting gear is unsuited to catching sharks, sailfish, the marlins and any fish that has to be taken by trolling a live bait, but the chief reason is that spinning tackle is just plain inefficient when compared to ordinary trolling gear.

Taking a big billfish or a knuckle dusting shark with the coffee grinder is just stunt fishing and it is misleading to the general public to ask them to buy equipment that is mechanically inferior to less expensive reels and rods which have bee in use for the last 50 years.

About Records

There have been some remarkable records hung up onto striped marlin, sailfish, mako shark, tarpon and other salt water giants, and their captors certainly deserve credit for achieving these marks.

In many cases it was the captain of the boat who earned the record, by circling and backing down on the fish so that a quick-fisted mate could snatch the 14½-pound wire leader as it came in view. This is a legitimate practice, and it has been used by light tackle record hunters for years. Theoretically, the angler has caught this fish inasmuch as he was holding the rod, but in principle, the boat won the engagement.

To my knowledge there is no spinning reel on the market that is suitable for hit-and-run big game fishing. Its mechanism is too delicate to withstand more than a limited amount of work. When put to the test, bails are ripped off, gears freeze, friction clutch drags function perkily.

Twists Line Badly

In the hands of most people who reel against the weight of a fish, the forward facing spool twists the line badly. To be built for a reasonable period of heavy fishing, the spinning reel has to be made in very large sizes, making it clumsy, heavy and expensive.

The fact that big-game fixed spool reels were abandoned in Europe, in preference to our American trolling wheels, is something we could well learn by. They were using spinning tackle for 25 years before it came to this country.

As a light tackle method of casting, spinning tackle has no peer. Any fish that can be taken on artificial lures in salt water is fair game, provided the angler has more than a little control over his quarry.

The remote possibility that an elephant might be killed with a .22 doesn't make the weapon a sporting proposition.

G. Shufeldt Pounds 686 Series in HVBL Contest

Elston Sport Shop earned a 2-1 decision over Walden Lewis Saturday at the Bowlodrome, but Schryver Lumber drpped a pair at home to Liberty Toros and Jones Dairy lost a pair at Ellenville to the Nash in HVBL action.

George Shufeldt unloaded a 686 blast against the Toros at the Central Recs with solo slams of 231, 211 and 244 but the Lumberjacks were able to salvage only the middle set.

Owl Trouble

Raleigh, N. C. (AP)—R. T. Woody, a farmer of Leasburg, plans to "owl proof" his next chicken house. Woody heard a disturbance one night recently in his chicken house. Investigating, he found an owl perched on one of the beams. Woody obtained his rifle and took six potshots at the owl which had to be pried loose from his perch. In the commotion 318 chickens were smothered.

Hunters Get Bad News; Rainfall Is Not Enough

Albany, Oct. 26 (AP) — Hunters got bad news today—prediction of at least three more days of cool, dry weather in the state's closed woodlands.

A coastal storm that swept northward up the Hudson Valley yesterday only licked at the eastern Catskills and the southern edge of the Adirondacks. Except for scattered, light showers inland, the rain was confined to a narrow coastal area. The Weather Bureau said it would bring no change in fire hazards that spurred Gov. Dewey to close the forests.

The State Conservation Department said the rain did not cover a large enough area to justify lifting the ban and predicted at least three more days of drouth.

Three new forest fires reported yesterday were extinguished by nightfall. They brought the total for the past week to 89. In Rockland county, the light rain allowed rangers to leave their lookout towers for the first time in three months.

However, officials said the rain was so slight a high wind could dry the woods again in 12 hours.

The rain was reported to be too late to help farmers except possibly in the salvaging of a few late maturing vegetables.

• The Tenpin Trail:

Charlie Grunenwald's 743 series in the Hudson Valley Bowling League is the highest reported in the area this season. Larry Weishaupt has a 717 in the same circuit, but the most consistent high shooter to date in the city has been George Robinson, who has proved convincingly that the burden of detailing the statistics of the two major circuits has affected neither his enthusiasm nor his high scoring proclivities on the polished lanes. This could be the year for his "arrival" as high average leader in both loops.

• The Eleventh Frame:

The Kingston Bowling Association's constitutional revision committee did a splendid job and will present a sound document to the KBA directors for approval on Nov. 1. The election procedure has been clarified and an honest effort is made to bind convention delegates to the choices of their respective leagues. In the past, some league delegates have made a farce of the procedure by ignoring league pledges and acting on their own initiative. Incidentally, the KBA will have a new, permanent headquarters at 277 Fair street after having held sessions at the YMCA for several years. Thirty six teams competed in the national team match game elimination in Cleveland over the weekend but only squad was entered from the Eastern seaboard—James "Junie" McMahon's Ronson Lighters of New York. Besides McMahon the New Yorkers had Tony Sparando, Jack Horn, Slim Okular and Frank Santore, two-time ABC all-events kingpin.

Orchids for the past week in local bowling went to Jack O'Rourke for his sizzling 288 in the Electrol League. There is a thrill about 10 strikes in a row that is not quickly forgotten. The supreme sensation, of course, remains the 300 game which is one of the major achievements in the whole realm of sports. Marge Jansen's 555 and 535 indicated the veteran ace is about the zero the target around the 1-3 pocket. Year after year, she has been one of the most consistent pocket shooters in local bowling. Eleanor Singer posted a 232 solo and a big 558 to maintain her brisk early season pace. Here is a gal with the equipment to challenge anybody in the city. Nice to see Judy Lowe and Judy Broskie doing so well. These youngsters were the prize graduates of the Kingston Youth League which operated a few years ago. The big guy in that loop, Rudi Hohenberger, is holding his own with the oldies these days. Ann Apa, who is not ranked among the headliners yet, deserves a round of applause for her brilliant 218 in the Central Rec Mixer. T tip of the hat to Jackie Ferraro for his excellent pinning in the HVBL. Some observers think this is the year Jackie might lead his illustrious father.

• Of Men and Mice:

Reservation holders for the 1954 ABC tournament at Seattle, Washington, must confirm by Nov. 2. After that they may file the entry fees until Dec. 1. After that all entries will be thrown open on a first come, first served basis with the last day for filing, Feb. 2. Best possibilities for Kingston representation are the Schryver Lumber and Jones Dairy squads, but it's a long way to Seattle unless you travel by plane and that costs real money. A trip of that nature entails long range planning, several days off for men who work for a living and other factors. Still it would be nice to see a Kingston team on the west coast. Incidentally, Mr. Bowler, any member of the American Bowling Congress (and that means you) is entitled to submit proposals for changes in the ABC's Constitution, Rules and Regulations. Such proposals must be submitted in writing to the ABC Secretary's office, 1572 East Capitol Drive, Milwaukee, Wis. Detroit and Cleveland, two of the country's top bowling centers, welcomed the 1953-54 bowling season in a typical major league style. Each city declared a" Bowling Day" and conducted a parade through the heart of the town to celebrate the formal opening of the tenpin season.

This has nothing to do with bowling but the baseball fever which gripped Milwaukee all summer is still being felt there. The municipal zoo made an off-season trade.

Director George Speidel traded a surplus leopard and two rhesus monkeys, plus cash, to the Chase Hill Wild Animal Farm at Egypt, Mass., for a male cheetah and four wanderoo monkeys. The cash involved was said to be $1060.

McConnell And Jordan Pound 584

Weekend bowlers failed to register a "600" triple in four leagues, with 584s by Don McConnell and Tracy Jordan leading the pack.

Rita La Rocca of the Ferraro Mixer posted 163-156-208 for 527 for the best distaff score.

McConnell compiled his series with slams of 186-196 and 202 in the Tavern Association where Claude Markle bagged high solo of 232.

Jordan took down both marks in the Central Rec Mixer with 153-226-205 for 584. John Brady fired 232 and William Short 152-190-168 for 510 in the Electrol.

Bill Stenson's 242 in the Ferraro Mixer was the best solo blast of the weekend and Dick Waltman took down series honors in that wheel with 168-170-215-553.

Giardello Meets Cartier Tonight

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Joey (Reversible) Giardello, who won, lost and won in the same fight with Billy Graham a year ago, is a 2 to 1 favorite over New York's Walter Cartier tonight in a middleweight bout at Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway.

The Philadelphia boxer never has lost at the Parkway where Cartier was stopped by Bobo Olson and split two decisions with Garth Panter. Giardello is the No. 5 contender in the division, now topped by Olson. The bout will be seen on TV (Dumont) some parts of the country.

George Araujo, a newlywed, will try to reverse a Sept. 10 upset by Teddy (Red Top) Davis when they meet Friday at Madison Square Garden. Araujo was favored to win the lightweight title the night he fought Jimmy Carter, but was stopped in the 13th round. Now he is No. 5 in the ring ratings The bout is the usual radio (ABC) and TV (NBC) Garden show.

Cleveland presents an international middleweight match, the third in the country within a week, when Rocky Castellani boxes France's Mickey Laurent Wednesday on TV (CBS). Castellani, third contender, has been moving up fast since he adopted Cleveland as his home.

Joey Giambra, the No. 6 middleweight from Buffalo, faces Jim (Red) Elby of Toledo in a cofeatured ten on the Cleveland show that also includes three fights.

In 1843, a tunnel beneath the River Thames, in London, costing thousands of pounds and the lives of seven workmen to complete, was opened to the public. Designed for vehicles, it never served as anything more than an attraction for curious pedestrians.

Bobby Dodd, Georgia Tech football coach and athletic director, was head coach of the College All-Stars for both the 1952 and 1953 games.

Habers Cop 4th in Row In Y Loop

Haber's Grill combined a fast break with timely tapins by Dick Bezemer to rout Lincoln Park Inn, 99-52, for their fourth straight win Saturday in the "A" division of the Autumn League.

In the companion piece, Harry's Angels copped a defensive battle from Victory Bakery, 53-49, for their third win in four starts.

Bezemer unloaded 31 points and Skip Brodhead rimmed 28 but it was the all-around play of the team that put the crusher on the Lincolns, who trailed 15-24 at the quarter and 48-28 at halftime. Veteran Rod Sagendorf bucketed 24 for the losers.

East Leads Angels

Big Bill East's 18 points sparked Harry's Angels to their win over Victory Bakey after a close first half in which the Angels led 27-26. Vince Peck scored 14 for the Bakers.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By AL McCLANE
(Fishing Editor)

I have long been an opponent of using spinning tackle for big game fish.

There are a number of reasons why I feel that ultra light casting gear is unsuited to catching sharks, sailfish, the marlins and any fish that has to be taken by trolling a live bait, but the chief reason is that spinning tackle is just plain inefficient when compared to ordinary trolling gear.

Taking a big billfish or a knuckle dusting shark with the coffee grinder is just stunt fishing and it is misleading to the general public to ask them to buy equipment that is mechanically inferior to less expensive reels and rods which have bee in use for the last 50 years.

About Records

There have been some remarkable records hung up onto striped marlin, sailfish, mako shark, tarpon and other salt water giants, and their captors certainly deserve credit for achieving these marks.

In many cases it was the captain of the boat who earned the record, by circling and backing down on the fish so that a quick-fisted mate could snatch the 14½-pound wire leader as it came in view. This is a legitimate practice, and it has been used by light tackle record hunters for years. Theoretically, the angler has caught this fish inasmuch as he was holding the rod, but in principle, the boat won the engagement.

To my knowledge there is no spinning reel on the market that is suitable for hit-and-run big game fishing. Its mechanism is too delicate to withstand more than a limited amount of work. When put to the test, bails are ripped off, gears freeze, friction clutch drags function perkily.

Twists Line Badly

In the hands of most people who reel against the weight of a fish, the forward facing spool twists the line badly. To be built for a reasonable period of heavy fishing, the spinning reel has to be made in very large sizes, making it clumsy, heavy and expensive.

The fact that big-game fixed spool reels were abandoned in Europe, in preference to our American trolling wheels, is something we could well learn by. They were using spinning tackle for 25 years before it came to this country.

As a light tackle method of casting, spinning tackle has no peer. Any fish that can be taken on artificial lures in salt water is fair game, provided the angler has more than a little control over his quarry.

The remote possibility that an elephant might be killed with a .22 doesn't make the weapon a sporting proposition.

Mrs. Mabel Fisher Honored by ACWA at Dinner

Jacob Potofsky, general president of Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America; Mrs. Mabel Fisher, former business agent of Locals 186 and 384, guest of honor; Mrs. Sarah Richens, new business agent of the locals, succeeding Mrs. Fisher and George Dempsey, president of Local 186 ACWA. (Kinkade and Hutton photo)

200 Pay Tribute To Mrs. Fisher at Dinner Saturday

Approximately 200 persons attended a testimonial dinner Saturday evening at the Stuyvesant Hotel in honor of Mrs. Mabel Fisher, retiring business agent of Local 186, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Mrs. Fisher has accepted a position with the New York City Joint Board, ACWA, representing 10,00 workers.

Among those paying tribute to Mrs. Fisher were Jacob Potofsky, general president of ACWA; Mrs. Bessie Hillman, vice-president of ACWA; Acting Mayor Joseph Kelly representing the city of Kingston; Samuel K. Jacobson, vice-president of F. Jacobson and Sons, and Roy Gregware, manager of the Capital District Joint Board.

Mrs. Sara Richens, who succeeds Mrs. Fisher, presented the retiring business agent with a wrist watch, a gift from members of the local. Charles Garahan, manager of the New York City Joint Board, served as master of ceremonies.

Volunteered to Come

Potofsky said he had volunteered to come to Kingston to pay tribute to Mrs. Fisher, that "Mabel is typical of those who have seen the light and purpose to organize labor. She has made a great contribution and still has a contribution to make."

He described the early days when labor had trouble and strikes and went on to tell about the educational program, pointing out that there were between 16 and 17 million organized workers in the country today. He said the purpose of labor was to raise the standard of living of the worker and that it had been a constructive force in the community.

Potofsky said the ACWA liked to see labor leaders play a role in political government in order to advance the status of the working people and that it was the desire of labor to work for prosperous conditions and peace.

He expressed the wish that in the future all segments of organized labor would be joined in one organized body to fight together.

Needs Young Blood

He said the organization was looking for young blood to carry on the labor movement and that Mrs. Fisher was typical of the younger generation which had caught the spirit of idealism.

"Mabel and Charlie (Garahan) and dozens of others are destined to play an important part in organized labor and the future of the nation," he stated.

He pointed out that the ACWA was second to none in the welfare program, that in sickness and death its members were protected. He said this gave the people a sense of dignity and security. "Independence you cannot have unless we are organized."

"You don't get anything unless you fight for it," he said.

To Mrs. Fisher he said, "God bless you and keep you strong."

Kelly Pays Tribute

Kelly said he was pleased to attend the event "to honor a grand lady, one of the outstanding union leaders of the area," who had succeeded in establishing one of the finest labor groups in the city. He also praised her efforts in building friendly relations with the press.

He paid tribute to Mrs. Fisher's interest in civic affairs and said the community would miss her. In saying farewell to the guest of honor, Kelly wished her success in her new position and welcomed her successor, Mrs. Richens, urging ACWA members to give her the same support they had Mrs. Fisher.

Speaks for Firm

Jacobson said he considered it an honor and privilege to speak as a representative of his firm "in paying deserved tribute" to Mrs. Fisher.

"During our long years of association we have all developed great respect for her and for the manner in which she has conducted her job. Her record speaks for itself and makes it only natural that she should be elevated to a higher position.

"She has always been loyal to the people whom she represented. She has been very diligent and devoted to her work. Decisions which she made throughout the years were always honest. She has benefited those of you whom she has represented, and the manufacturers as well. In fact, to put it in its broadest terms, Mabel Fisher has benefited all of Kingston.

"We all wish her every success in her new position which we know in advance and on the basis of her record she will capably fill. Above all, we want her to know that she will be greatly missed by all of us and that we will remember her always with affection and esteem."

Gregware expressed regret that Mrs. Fisher was leaving and praised her ability to handle problems. He said he knew Mrs. Richens would do a good job and asked for support of her leadership. Mrs. Hillman paid high tribute to Mrs. Fisher, expressing deep and sincere appreciation for the many years they had known each other.

Mrs. Fisher Replies

In reply, Mrs. Fisher said she was honored by the dinner and expressed appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Potofsky, Mrs. Hillman and others who were attending.

Mrs. Fisher said she had joined the union November 16, 1934. She spoke of her happy relationship with the heads of firms, pointing out that the ACWA was not only interested in working conditions but in the welfare of the people and that she felt certain the local would continue along the same lines.

"The education I received during the last 19 years," she said, "I wouldn't trade for any college degree."

She said she was happy to have been able to help organize the Upper Hudson Area Council. She pointed out that it was difficult for her to leave Kingston and the friends she had made here, extended congratulations to Mrs. Richens and wished her success in her new office.

Mrs. Richens said she would strive to serve everyone "proudly and justly."

Patrolman Kills Assailant; Another Flees From Scene

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—A young patrolman early today shot and killed one of two fleeing men who had assaulted him when he tried to question them for acting suspiciously.

The second man, who apparently was armed, escaped. A major clue to his identity was a brown fedora which fell from his head.

Police tentatively identified the dead man as Vincent Bergstrum, 28, of 61 Ellwood street, Manhattan, or Jamaica, Queens.

Police said he was struck in the chest by a bullet from the gun of Patrolman John Hagan, 30, who joined the force about a year ago.

The patrolman said the two men appeared to be acting suspiciously when he noticed them at 2:50 a. m. on Amsterdam avenue.

When they turned into 64th street, he said, he ordered them to halt and prepared to question and search them.

Attacked by Two

The two men attacked him, Hagan said, punching him around the face and head. One held him so tightly in a headlock that the brass numerals on his collar were bent.

The patrolman said they fled when he broke free and struck at them with his night stick.

After firing two warning shots into the air, he said, one of the men yelled: "Get him." At that moment, the patrolman continued, one of them threw an object into the street. It later turned out to be a foreign-make automatic.

When the two men continued to run, the patrolman fired two shots at them. A few seconds later he caught up with one and the other sped south on West End avenue.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Motors and steels were active and higher today in the stock market and provided the major portion of buoyancy in the list.

Gains ran to between 1 and 2 points at the best, although advances of that size were not frequent. Losses were fractional.

Volume was at a rate right around Friday's 1,330,000 shares. That total is not very far under the daily average so far this year.

Chrysler was the leader of the motor division as a result of its announced plans to buy Briggs Mfg., maker of auto bodies and equipment.

Briggs in a delayed opening started on a block of 6,500 shares up 6⅜ at 37½ and then dropped back to a trading range of 34-35. Chrysler gained more than a point and held to that level.

Steels as a group were active and higher. U. S. Steel meets tomorrow for dividend action and to report its third quarter profits. Reports of steel companies so far have been excellent.

Answers Cops' Query

Malone, Oct. 26 (AP)—Bernard Gould kept forgetting to feed the parking meter and the police kept handing out tickets. He complained. Sgt. George Kositch came up with the solution that moved Gould to write: Inside my car you'll find at all times a holder filled with nickels and dimes; although I'm not the kind that hollers, use it—I'm running out of dollars.

Late Bulletin

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—New bargaining talks began today in an effort to end a strike which has shut off fresh milk for 12 million persons in the tri-state New York metropolitan area.

About 13,000 members of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters Union halted deliveries at 4 p. m. (EST) yesterday, in a wage-hour dispute with 200 companies.

Union and company negotiators entered discussions shortly before noon. A special mediation panel stood by to give assistance, if asked.

C. J. Blanford, administrator for the New York federal-state milk market, said the strike is costing 50,000 dairy farmers in the New York milk shed about $250,000 a day. The farmers, he said, can sell their output to plants making cheese and other dry products but at lower prices.

Milk Strike

quick settlement. Returns from processed milk bring the distributors only about two-thirds the amount realized from sale of fresh milk, it was pointed out by Chester Elliott of the Consumer-Farmer Milk Cooperative, Inc., at New Paltz, which has its own manufacturing plant at Belle Mead, N. J.

The Consumer-Farmer Cooperative, as a cooperative guarantees to take farmers' milk regardless of whether the market for fresh milk exists or not, it was pointed out.

Other distributors were finding temporary relief by shipping milk into other markets, the Dairymen's League Co-op Association, Inc., at Accord, for instance, sent its milk this morning to Great Barrington, Mass.

Held at Saugerties

Six milk tank trucks out of Gouverneur were held at Saugerties early today. Elon Porter, operator of those and 10 other trucks, told the Associated Press that he was diverting the milk to processing plants at Evans Mills, North Lawrence and other northern New York points for conversion into powdered milk.

In the immediate Kingston area, the strike had little effect on producers or distributors. While the seven local distributors reportedly have working agreements with Shawangunk Dairies to send surplus there for shipment to New York, it was pointed out that the Kingston market at the present is capable of absorbing the entire local production.

Robert Guzewich, associate Ulster county farm agent, explained that the drouth has cut milk production so that there is no surplus locally.

Red Leader Still Critical

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Communist leader Robert G. Thompson's condition is reported still critical from a beating over the head by another federal prisoner last Friday. However, Thompson is said to be resting comfortably. This was reported yesterday by the superintendent's office at the Federal House of Detention, where Thompson was being held pending a trial for contempt. A Yugoslav, Alexander Pavlovich, 32, assaulted Thompson with an iron pipe on Friday, a few hours before the Yugoslav was to have been deported.

Warns of Threat

Atlanta, Oct. 26 (AP)—The president-elect of the American Medical Association said today "expansion" of activities of the federal government in the hospital field constitutes a threat to civilian hospitals. "The civilian system now finds itself in competition with federal hospitals not only for doctors, nurses and technicians but for patients as well," said Dr. Walter B. Martin in an address prepared for the 47th annual meeting of the Southern Medical Association."

Three Added to Staff

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Moreland Act Commission probing the state's harness race tracks has added to its staff three more investigative experts, who worked in the State Crime Commission's waterfront rackets inquiry. The three are Perley Gale, former chief investigator for the Crime Commission, and Arnold A. Hackmyer and Mrs. Mary Goodhue, assistant counsel. Gale will be chief investigator for the harness track probers and Hackmyer and Mrs. Goodhue will be legal aides.

Kills Wife, Self

Kenmore, Oct. 26 (AP)—A 52-year-old man beat his wife to death with a hammer and took his own life with a shotgun. Erie County Sheriff Arthur D. Britt identified the couple as Russell K. Bard, 52, and his wife, Helen, 50. Medical Examiner Rocco N. De Dominics said the husband apparently killed his wife with a hammer then shot himself. The bodies were discovered by a neighbor. The Bards had no children.

Truck Driver Hurt

Edmond L. Gendarme, 47, truck driver of 15 DeWitt street, Kingston, received a cut on the nose and right leg Sunday about 11 a. m., when his car was involved in an accident at Port Ewen. The car was damaged about the right side. Deputy Sheriff Harrison Rose investigated and reported Gendarme had been taken to Benedictine Hospital by the Schultz ambulance when he arrived at the scene.

Oswego Strike Is Made

Oswego, Oct. 26 (AP)—Oil prospectors have made the first oil strike ever reported in this area of central New York. Drillers on the Martin Beckwith farm about 10 miles east of here Saturday brought up oil and gas from 800 feet. Geologists were quoted as saying the well might produce 2,000 barrels a day.

Mrs. Mabel Fisher Honored by ACWA at Dinner

200 Pay Tribute To Mrs. Fisher at Dinner Saturday

Approximately 200 persons attended a testimonial dinner Saturday evening at the Stuyvesant Hotel in honor of Mrs. Mabel Fisher, retiring business agent of Local 186, Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Mrs. Fisher has accepted a position with the New York City Joint Board, ACWA, representing 10,00 workers.

Among those paying tribute to Mrs. Fisher were Jacob Potofsky, general president of ACWA; Mrs. Bessie Hillman, vice-president of ACWA; Acting Mayor Joseph Kelly representing the city of Kingston; Samuel K. Jacobson, vice-president of F. Jacobson and Sons, and Roy Gregware, manager of the Capital District Joint Board.

Mrs. Sara Richens, who succeeds Mrs. Fisher, presented the retiring business agent with a wrist watch, a gift from members of the local. Charles Garahan, manager of the New York City Joint Board, served as master of ceremonies.

Volunteered to Come

Potofsky said he had volunteered to come to Kingston to pay tribute to Mrs. Fisher, that "Mabel is typical of those who have seen the light and purpose to organize labor. She has made a great contribution and still has a contribution to make."

He described the early days when labor had trouble and strikes and went on to tell about the educational program, pointing out that there were between 16 and 17 million organized workers in the country today. He said the purpose of labor was to raise the standard of living of the worker and that it had been a constructive force in the community.

Potofsky said the ACWA liked to see labor leaders play a role in political government in order to advance the status of the working people and that it was the desire of labor to work for prosperous conditions and peace.

He expressed the wish that in the future all segments of organized labor would be joined in one organized body to fight together.

Needs Young Blood

He said the organization was looking for young blood to carry on the labor movement and that Mrs. Fisher was typical of the younger generation which had caught the spirit of idealism.

"Mabel and Charlie (Garahan) and dozens of others are destined to play an important part in organized labor and the future of the nation," he stated.

He pointed out that the ACWA was second to none in the welfare program, that in sickness and death its members were protected. He said this gave the people a sense of dignity and security. "Independence you cannot have unless we are organized."

"You don't get anything unless you fight for it," he said.

To Mrs. Fisher he said, "God bless you and keep you strong."

Kelly Pays Tribute

Kelly said he was pleased to attend the event "to honor a grand lady, one of the outstanding union leaders of the area," who had succeeded in establishing one of the finest labor groups in the city. He also praised her efforts in building friendly relations with the press.

He paid tribute to Mrs. Fisher's interest in civic affairs and said the community would miss her. In saying farewell to the guest of honor, Kelly wished her success in her new position and welcomed her successor, Mrs. Richens, urging ACWA members to give her the same support they had Mrs. Fisher.

Speaks for Firm

Jacobson said he considered it an honor and privilege to speak as a representative of his firm "in paying deserved tribute" to Mrs. Fisher.

"During our long years of association we have all developed great respect for her and for the manner in which she has conducted her job. Her record speaks for itself and makes it only natural that she should be elevated to a higher position.

"She has always been loyal to the people whom she represented. She has been very diligent and devoted to her work. Decisions which she made throughout the years were always honest. She has benefited those of you whom she has represented, and the manufacturers as well. In fact, to put it in its broadest terms, Mabel Fisher has benefited all of Kingston.

"We all wish her every success in her new position which we know in advance and on the basis of her record she will capably fill. Above all, we want her to know that she will be greatly missed by all of us and that we will remember her always with affection and esteem."

Gregware expressed regret that Mrs. Fisher was leaving and praised her ability to handle problems. He said he knew Mrs. Richens would do a good job and asked for support of her leadership. Mrs. Hillman paid high tribute to Mrs. Fisher, expressing deep and sincere appreciation for the many years they had known each other.

Mrs. Fisher Replies

In reply, Mrs. Fisher said she was honored by the dinner and expressed appreciation to Mr. and Mrs. Potofsky, Mrs. Hillman and others who were attending.

Mrs. Fisher said she had joined the union November 16, 1934. She spoke of her happy relationship with the heads of firms, pointing out that the ACWA was not only interested in working conditions but in the welfare of the people and that she felt certain the local would continue along the same lines.

"The education I received during the last 19 years," she said, "I wouldn't trade for any college degree."

She said she was happy to have been able to help organize the Upper Hudson Area Council. She pointed out that it was difficult for her to leave Kingston and the friends she had made here, extended congratulations to Mrs. Richens and wished her success in her new office.

Mrs. Richens said she would strive to serve everyone "proudly and justly."

Patrolman Kills Assailant; Another Flees From Scene

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—A young patrolman early today shot and killed one of two fleeing men who had assaulted him when he tried to question them for acting suspiciously.

The second man, who apparently was armed, escaped. A major clue to his identity was a brown fedora which fell from his head.

Police tentatively identified the dead man as Vincent Bergstrum, 28, of 61 Ellwood street, Manhattan, or Jamaica, Queens.

Police said he was struck in the chest by a bullet from the gun of Patrolman John Hagan, 30, who joined the force about a year ago.

The patrolman said the two men appeared to be acting suspiciously when he noticed them at 2:50 a. m. on Amsterdam avenue.

When they turned into 64th street, he said, he ordered them to halt and prepared to question and search them.

Attacked by Two

The two men attacked him, Hagan said, punching him around the face and head. One held him so tightly in a headlock that the brass numerals on his collar were bent.

The patrolman said they fled when he broke free and struck at them with his night stick.

After firing two warning shots into the air, he said, one of the men yelled: "Get him." At that moment, the patrolman continued, one of them threw an object into the street. It later turned out to be a foreign-make automatic.

When the two men continued to run, the patrolman fired two shots at them. A few seconds later he caught up with one and the other sped south on West End avenue.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Motors and steels were active and higher today in the stock market and provided the major portion of buoyancy in the list.

Gains ran to between 1 and 2 points at the best, although advances of that size were not frequent. Losses were fractional.

Volume was at a rate right around Friday's 1,330,000 shares. That total is not very far under the daily average so far this year.

Chrysler was the leader of the motor division as a result of its announced plans to buy Briggs Mfg., maker of auto bodies and equipment.

Briggs in a delayed opening started on a block of 6,500 shares up 6⅜ at 37½ and then dropped back to a trading range of 34-35. Chrysler gained more than a point and held to that level.

Steels as a group were active and higher. U. S. Steel meets tomorrow for dividend action and to report its third quarter profits. Reports of steel companies so far have been excellent.

Answers Cops' Query

Malone, Oct. 26 (AP)—Bernard Gould kept forgetting to feed the parking meter and the police kept handing out tickets. He complained. Sgt. George Kositch came up with the solution that moved Gould to write: Inside my car you'll find at all times a holder filled with nickels and dimes; although I'm not the kind that hollers, use it—I'm running out of dollars.

Late Bulletin

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—New bargaining talks began today in an effort to end a strike which has shut off fresh milk for 12 million persons in the tri-state New York metropolitan area.

About 13,000 members of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters Union halted deliveries at 4 p. m. (EST) yesterday, in a wage-hour dispute with 200 companies.

Union and company negotiators entered discussions shortly before noon. A special mediation panel stood by to give assistance, if asked.

C. J. Blanford, administrator for the New York federal-state milk market, said the strike is costing 50,000 dairy farmers in the New York milk shed about $250,000 a day. The farmers, he said, can sell their output to plants making cheese and other dry products but at lower prices.

Milk Strike

quick settlement. Returns from processed milk bring the distributors only about two-thirds the amount realized from sale of fresh milk, it was pointed out by Chester Elliott of the Consumer-Farmer Milk Cooperative, Inc., at New Paltz, which has its own manufacturing plant at Belle Mead, N. J.

The Consumer-Farmer Cooperative, as a cooperative guarantees to take farmers' milk regardless of whether the market for fresh milk exists or not, it was pointed out.

Other distributors were finding temporary relief by shipping milk into other markets, the Dairymen's League Co-op Association, Inc., at Accord, for instance, sent its milk this morning to Great Barrington, Mass.

Held at Saugerties

Six milk tank trucks out of Gouverneur were held at Saugerties early today. Elon Porter, operator of those and 10 other trucks, told the Associated Press that he was diverting the milk to processing plants at Evans Mills, North Lawrence and other northern New York points for conversion into powdered milk.

In the immediate Kingston area, the strike had little effect on producers or distributors. While the seven local distributors reportedly have working agreements with Shawangunk Dairies to send surplus there for shipment to New York, it was pointed out that the Kingston market at the present is capable of absorbing the entire local production.

Robert Guzewich, associate Ulster county farm agent, explained that the drouth has cut milk production so that there is no surplus locally.

Red Leader Still Critical

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—Communist leader Robert G. Thompson's condition is reported still critical from a beating over the head by another federal prisoner last Friday. However, Thompson is said to be resting comfortably. This was reported yesterday by the superintendent's office at the Federal House of Detention, where Thompson was being held pending a trial for contempt. A Yugoslav, Alexander Pavlovich, 32, assaulted Thompson with an iron pipe on Friday, a few hours before the Yugoslav was to have been deported.

Warns of Threat

Atlanta, Oct. 26 (AP)—The president-elect of the American Medical Association said today "expansion" of activities of the federal government in the hospital field constitutes a threat to civilian hospitals. "The civilian system now finds itself in competition with federal hospitals not only for doctors, nurses and technicians but for patients as well," said Dr. Walter B. Martin in an address prepared for the 47th annual meeting of the Southern Medical Association."

Three Added to Staff

New York, Oct. 26 (AP)—The Moreland Act Commission probing the state's harness race tracks has added to its staff three more investigative experts, who worked in the State Crime Commission's waterfront rackets inquiry. The three are Perley Gale, former chief investigator for the Crime Commission, and Arnold A. Hackmyer and Mrs. Mary Goodhue, assistant counsel. Gale will be chief investigator for the harness track probers and Hackmyer and Mrs. Goodhue will be legal aides.

Kills Wife, Self

Kenmore, Oct. 26 (AP)—A 52-year-old man beat his wife to death with a hammer and took his own life with a shotgun. Erie County Sheriff Arthur D. Britt identified the couple as Russell K. Bard, 52, and his wife, Helen, 50. Medical Examiner Rocco N. De Dominics said the husband apparently killed his wife with a hammer then shot himself. The bodies were discovered by a neighbor. The Bards had no children.

Truck Driver Hurt

Edmond L. Gendarme, 47, truck driver of 15 DeWitt street, Kingston, received a cut on the nose and right leg Sunday about 11 a. m., when his car was involved in an accident at Port Ewen. The car was damaged about the right side. Deputy Sheriff Harrison Rose investigated and reported Gendarme had been taken to Benedictine Hospital by the Schultz ambulance when he arrived at the scene.

Oswego Strike Is Made

Oswego, Oct. 26 (AP)—Oil prospectors have made the first oil strike ever reported in this area of central New York. Drillers on the Martin Beckwith farm about 10 miles east of here Saturday brought up oil and gas from 800 feet. Geologists were quoted as saying the well might produce 2,000 barrels a day.

This is an example of a changing expression. It used to be thought that the shucks of corn were worthless, but now corn shucks have been put to many uses although the expression persists.

Navy Chief Takes His Fight for Boy To Tokyo Officials

Tokyo, Oct. 26 (AP)—A determined navy chief boatswain mate from New Rochelle, N. Y., is back in Japan today trying to make new arrangements to take a 4-year-old Korean orphan he adopted back to the United States with him.

Chief Vincent T. Paladino was turned back Oct. 22 by immigration officials in Hawaii when he tried to take Lee Kyung Soo with him to his new station in the San Francisco area. They said the boy did not have a correct visa for entry.

The navy said Paladino found Lee, in the streets of Inchon, Korea, 11 months ago. Paladino, who is unmarried, adopted the boy under Korean law.

The chief returned by marine plane to Japan last night with the weeping boy in his arms and said he intends to meet with U. S. Embassy officials here to see if he can unsnarl the legal tangle.

"I'm definitely not going to give the boy up regardless of what happens," Paladino said. "If I can't have Lee, I will turn him over to my folks. They raised 13 children and I'm sure they can take care of him."

The navy has placed Paladino on temporary duty here while he fights to get the boy into the U. S. Paladino lives at 78 Rhodes St., New Rochelle.
